GERMAN CHURCH CRISIS DEVELOPMENTS

Secret Police Raid Homes Of Opposition Pastors

Berlin, Yesterday.
The Secret Police have raided the homes of those Pastors who are members of Bishop von Bodelschwingh's opposition league at Schneidemuhl, Dortmund, Stettin and other places.
Documents and lists of local supporters were seized and the Pastor of Schneidemuhl arrested.—Reuter.

AUSTRIAN NAZIS ARRESTED

Action Forced On Dollfuss.

HEIMWEHR LEADER ALSO IN CUSTODY

Vienna, Yesterday.
Herr Alfred Frauenfeld, former Chief of the Nazis in Austria, and all other Nazi leaders have been again arrested following pressure brought to bear on the Chancellor, Dr. Engelbert Dollfuss, by the Heimwehr.
This was not unexpected, but surprise has been caused by the arrest of Count Alberti, the Heimwehr Chief in Lower Austria, who is known, however, to be demanding outspoken Fascism and is reported to be coquetting with the Nazis.—Reuter.

Earlier cables have given reports of Nazi outbreaks in many parts of Austria, in the face of the Government threat to take stern measures to deal with their activities.

On Thursday two Nazis were killed and two wounded in Klagenfurt, where a bomb attack was made on the offices of the Christian-Socialist Government newspaper by members of the Labour Corps, a Nazi organisation dissolved a month ago.

Another two hundred and fifty arrests were effected in Vienna, which was invaded afoot and in lorries by contingents of the Nazi Labour Corps, many of them being in possession of bombing materials.

MARLEY STILL AGITATING

Petition For Release Of Noulens.

"A SAVAGE SENTENCE"

London, Yesterday.
In a letter to the Manchester Guardian Lord Marley, the Labour Peer, who headed the Anti-War League, whose proposed meetings were banned in Shanghai and Japan, invites signatures for a petition to the Chinese Government for the release of Mr. and Mrs. Rueggs alias Mr. Paul and Mrs. Gertrude Noulens.
The letter states that they were imprisoned "for Trade Union activities."

"It was felt that the offence in noway justified such a savage sentence, and the circumstances of the trial cast doubts on the impartiality of the administration of justice," the letter declares.—Reuter.
The Noulens, who are serving a life sentence for plotting to overthrow the Chinese Government, are in a critical condition as the result of a death fast.
Paul Noulens, who entered his twenty-fifth day of fasting yesterday morning, cannot live more than another day or two, according to doctors.
Mrs. Noulens, who has been fasting for 17 days, is rapidly weakening and has the appearance of a ghost.

REBELLION DOOMED

GOVERNMENT FORCES ENTER KUTIEN TOWN

NEGOTIATIONS FOR SETTLEMENT.

H.M.S. BERWICK STANDING BY IN HONG KONG

Foochow has been occupied by Nanking naval forces according to Chinese reports from Shanghai, which are yet unconfirmable here.

It is learned from local Chinese sources, however, that negotiations for a settlement of the dispute on the following lines are proceeding.

Firstly, the Fukien Government be abolished.

Secondly, that General Li Chai-sum and General Chen Ming-shu are to resign all posts.

Thirdly, the Nanking troops are not to enter Foochow.

Fourthly, the Nineteenth Route Army is to be incorporated with the Government forces.

NANKING TROOPS MOVING SOUTH.

Nanking, Yesterday.

A telegram from General Yu Fei-peng says that the Government troops entered the walled town of Kutien at noon yesterday, the rebels being disarmed and taken prisoner.

According to Chinese press despatches, the advanced guards of the Government forces are pushing south from Kutien and have already reached Tapeiling, about 30 li from the northern gate Foochow.—Reuter.

REVOLT COLLAPSING

Peking, Yesterday.

According to reports from the south the rebellion in Fukien is on the point of collapse. Two Government divisions are reported to have broken through the XIX Army at Minghsien.

The XIX Army has sent every available soldier to the front, where all commanders have already arrived.
Every form of transport, including motor-buses and rickshas, has been used to carry troops, munitions and supplies to the front.—Reuter.

BERWICK READY TO LEAVE

FINE FLIGHT OVER TASMAN SEA

Kingsford Smith Lands In New Zealand.

Wellington, N.Z., Yesterday.
Air-Commodore Sir Charles Kingsford Smith, the famous Australian airman, who with a navigator and wireless operator left Sydney at 2.09 a.m. to-day in his record-breaking aeroplane, "The Southern Cross," landed at New Plymouth, at 7.35 p.m. (New Zealand time) after flying the Tasman Sea.

Bad weather was experienced during the flight.—Reuter.

Sir Charles Kingsford Smith, who in October last year established a new record for the England-Australia flight, of 7 days, 4 hours, 44 minutes, was the first man to fly the Tasman Sea, making his first trip in 1928.

Owing to the bad weather conditions which prevail over the Tasman Sea, the flight is generally considered as a hazardous undertaking.

R.A.F. FLIGHT TO SINGAPORE

Start From Iraq.

SIX BOMBERS TO MAKE 11,000-MILES TRIP

London, Yesterday.
The first flight to Singapore of a Royal Air Force unit from Iraq will start to-morrow, when four single-engined bombers of No. 84 Squadron, accompanied by two transport bombers, will leave Shaibah, flying via Karachi, Calcutta and Rangoon, arriving at Singapore about January 26.

The presence of the transport bombers will enable spare parts to be carried, thus the single-engined bombers will be much less dependent on the bases than they would otherwise.
The round trip, which is about 11,000 miles, will be covered by almost continuous daily flying.—Reuter.

ASQUITH TRADITION UPHELD.

Another Scholar Of Balliol College.

London, Yesterday.
The present Earl of Oxford and Asquith, grandson of the first Earl, has been elected a Scholar of Balliol College, Oxford.

His father, Mr. Raymond Asquith, was elected a scholar of Balliol in 1897, his grandfather in 1876, his uncles, Mr. Cyril and Mr. Anthony Asquith in 1909 and 1921 respectively, while his great-uncle, Mr. W. W. Asquith, was an Exhibitioner.—Reuter.

ANOTHER FUNCTION OF SILVER

METAL IN GLANDS AND TONSILS.

WIDE POSSIBILITIES OF MEDICAL DISCOVERIES

London, Yesterday.

A sensation has been caused among the silver interests by the discoveries of Dr. J. H. Sheldon, of Wolverhampton, now released in "The British Medical Journal" of the important functions of silver in the human body and in certain vegetables.

The thyroid gland is especially rich in silver, also the tonsils, particularly in childhood, thus indirectly throwing light on the habit of some children, inferentially deficient in silver, to put coins in their mouths.

The growth of watercress and the nicotine-secreting hairs of the tobacco plant are also powerfully stimulated by silver.

It is understood that these discoveries are suggesting wide possibilities for further use of white metal and are providing cogent arguments for the prosecution of the free silver campaign to be brought early to the notice of the United States silver advocates. Senator Key Pittman and Senator Thomas.—Reuter.

MONETARY POLICY IN AMERICA.

Important Statement On Monday.

Washington, Yesterday.
President Roosevelt has declared a new moratorium to extend over the week-end, so the outcome of the whirlwind consultations on the monetary policy last week are not expected to be known before Monday.

President Roosevelt is reported to be considering several methods of reorganising his money policy, including bimetalism, a free gold market and the restriction of gold to the settlement of international balances.

The re-captured of the Federal Reserve's gold as a preliminary to the devaluation of the dollar, and temporary stabilisation, are also under consideration.—Reuter.

Washington, Yesterday.
The United States Treasury Secretary, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, has appointed Mr. Mariner S. Eccles, President of the First National Bank of Ogden, Utah, as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in succession to Mr. Earle Ballew, who has resigned.

5 GERMAN BUCCANEERS UP FOR TRIAL

Everyone For Himself In Dairen Court.

PROCEEDINGS ADJOURNED

Dairen, Yesterday.
Accusation and counter-accusations featured the resumption of the trial of the five Europeans charged with pirating the Shengan.
Gautchi, in addressing the Court, point-blank attacked Westerman Netaudien for denying all guilt when they were the "main figures." He said that Taudien originated the plan and Westerman "forced the hand" by starting the killing.

Taudien countered by saying that Gautchi and Westerman were the real leaders. "Just because I grounded the Shengan they are now framing to get me." The Court was adjourned until February 15 for experts' testimony and also for the evidence of the second officer and wireless operator of the Shengan, who are now in Tientsin.—Reuter.

On July 1 three Europeans and seven Chinese were brutally murdered by five German buccaneers when the Shengan was 200 miles from Shanghai. Bad navigation, however, caused the ship to run aground at Hoshiyaur, the famous resort near Dairen. Three arrests were then made and two later.

BRITISH LIQUOR FOR AMERICAN PORK.

Reciprocal Agreement.

Washington, Yesterday.
The doubling of the British liquor quota in return for an increase from 6.3 to 7.6 per cent. in American pork products admitted to Britain, is conditional on such imports being cleared at foreign ports before midnight on January 27.

On Wednesday Tilden beat Vines by 8-6, 6-3, 6-2 in a match in New York.

It has been officially stated by Mr. O'Brien, manager of the "Tilden Circus" that Tilden and Vines will make a tour of Japan and China during the autumn of this year, leaving for Japan in October.

HENRY PU YI'S CORONATION IMMINENT

JAPAN'S INFLUENCE TO BE WIDENED.

"Friendly Relations With Soviet And China."

Changchun, Yesterday.

Scores of officials and retainers who served in the Manchu Imperial House at Peking are gathering at Changchun for the coronation of Mr. Henry Pu Yi, as Emperor of Manchukuo, which promises to be the most colourful event in the history of Manchuria.

It is learned that as soon as the Monarchy is established, a new protocol, extending Japan's influence, will be signed.

Five ranks of nobility, from Baron to Duke have been created.

An amnesty will be granted to political prisoners.

Other measures include the retention of the Cabinet system, with the authority of the Ministers considerably widened, the abolition of Japanese extraterritorial rights, far-reaching economic and financial reforms, and the elevation of the Manchukuo Legation at Tokyo to the status of an Embassy.

The foreign policy will be directed mainly to developing friendly relations with the Soviet and China.—Reuter.

PU YI SENDS GIFT TO KING GEORGE.

Visiting Japan In June.

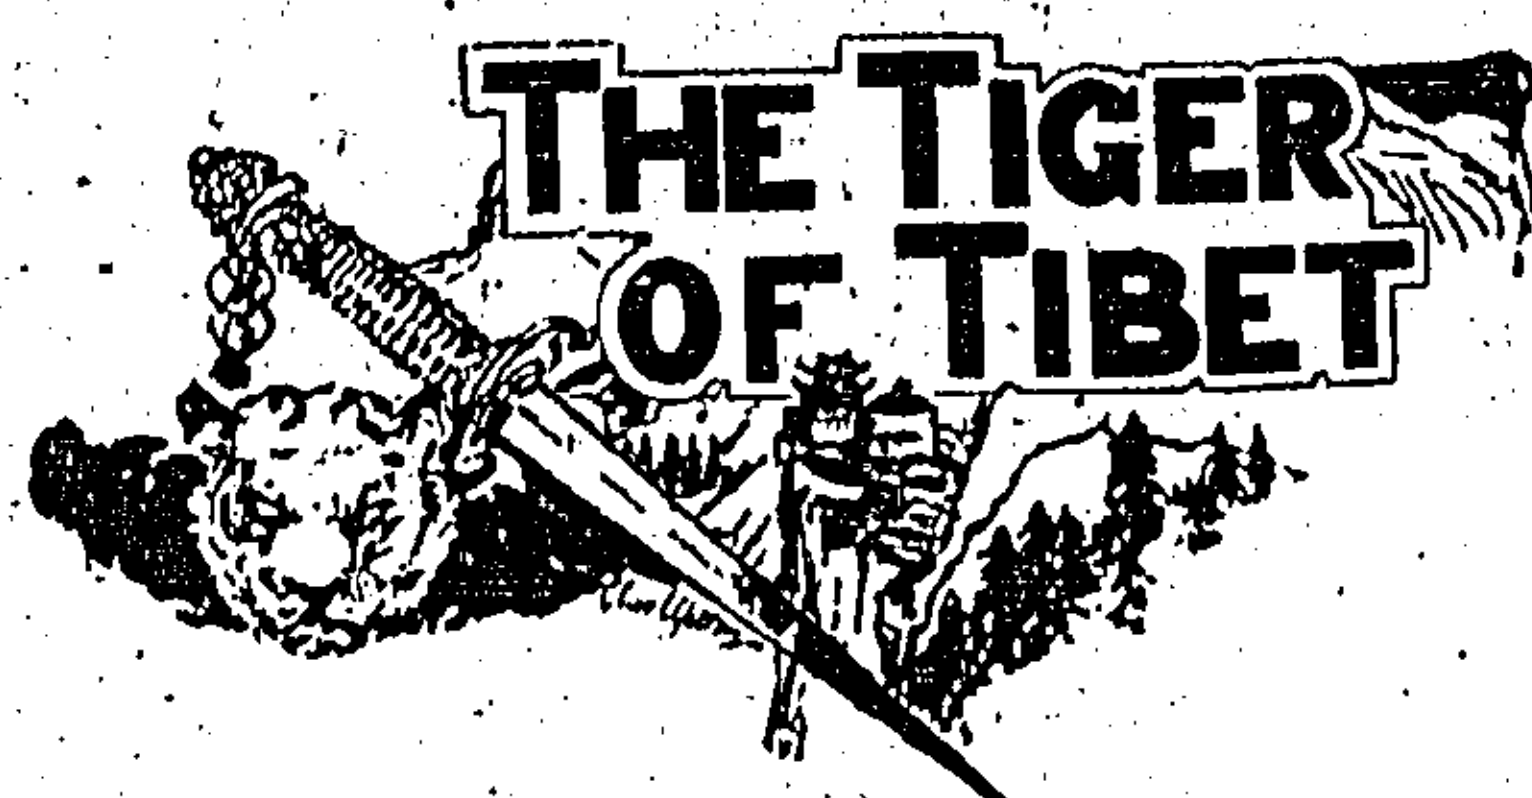

Dairen, Yesterday.
A Changchun message announces that Mr. Henry Pu Yi, through Sir Reginald Johnston, Professor of Chinese at the University of London, has presented His Majesty King George with three photographs, and some verse written by himself.
This, and another announcement that Henry Pu Yi is visiting Japan in June, is believed to have a most significant meaning.
The supplementary Budget published to-day, includes $3,500,000 for "urgent funds" presumably meaning funds for the Coronation ceremony on March 1. Reuter's Pacific Service.

Chapter XVI.—SHER KHAN'S STORY.

(By GERALD BURRARD.)

"I watched you enter his shuldari, we journeyed far-round the mountain, as do the pilgrims, and then went well. Then I saw him come out alone and beckon to several Tibetans who were sitting round the big fire. They immediately surrounded the shuldari and suddenly flung it down on your head. I at once began to pull out my rifle, but I soon realised that in that uncertain light I might shoot you, sahib, and so I waited and watched while they smote you and made you prisoner. You were bound and your body wrapped up in a blanket and placed near the fire. I saw you were unconscious. The Tibetan then went over to the white man's tent, evidently to report his deeds.

"I saw that they did not intend to move camp at once, and knew that if I were to rescue you it would have to be by cunning rather than open force, and so I went back to the spot where I had left your bedding and carried it to the place whence I had been watching the devil-camp. I knew, sahib, that when I had accomplished your rescue you would need that bedding, so I kept it with me. It is cold up here now, but it was colder that night lying in the open plain. Never before have I known such a wind. I crawled into your bed, sahib, and wrapped my own blankets around me. Only thus could I keep myself alive.

"Lying thus I watched the camp all night, never daring to sleep, lest they should move before it was light and discover me.

"It was well that I kept awake, for long before the first glint of dawn they began to stir. I at once crawled farther away and waited in the distance. As soon as it was light I saw their yaks being driven round to the north, and then I knew that they were making for afar, keeping out of view, and saw the temple. I followed from them approach the steps which led to the temple gate. From the outside it does not look a very big building, not nearly so large as it is. The yaks were driven away by their native that these animals were on no account permitted to mix with some other herds of yaks which I saw in the distance.

"While I was lying in some hills watching through my glasses I saw a solitary man approaching. I seemed to know his walk, and my glasses soon showed me that it was Jogaroo.

"I knew that he must be the bearer of urgent tidings, as otherwise he would have waited at the padre-sahib's house. Pilgrims were frequently journeying round the mountain, and many must pass close to the 'Tiger's' temple, but they never try to enter because they are told that it is the abode of a sect of lamas who have forsworn the outer world. I found this out afterwards, sahib.

"I soon saw that Jogaroo was making for the clump of hills in which I was hidden, as this would be the best place from which to watch the temple. I let him come near and then called out his name. At first he was very surprised, but soon saw where I was and joined me. He told me that soon after Tangin had returned from showing us the way across the mountains the padre-sahib's house was attacked by a body of about thirty Tibetans. He managed to hide and escaped slaughter, but both Tsering and Tangin, as well as the Tibetan prisoner, were slain and their heads were cut off."

Geoffrey nodded. He knew this too well.

"Jogaroo hid on the mountain-side, and after the Tibetans had departed he returned to the house to see if they had stolen anything. He found your letter, sahib, had been taken from the table, but that nothing else seemed missing. He then collected all the ammunition which we had stored and hurried after us by the Lipu Lok Pass as fast as he could. He had travelled hard and made good time.

"I told him what had happened, and we decided to try and reconnoitre the temple from above. So

"Wait a minute, Sher Khan. About what time was it that you looked down into the courtyard?"

"Noon, sahib. Why?"

"Oh, nothing. I will tell you some other time. Go on."

"I forgot to say, sahib, that in the middle of the courtyard I saw four dead men. From where we were it seemed as if they were tied up to posts."

Geoffrey nodded again. Sher Khan must have arrived soon after his first dash for liberty. The bodies of the Tibetans and the three lamas must have been removed.

Sher Khan.

"Having eaten, sahib, we decided to return and investigate that cleft in the bottom of the mountain. I thought at the time it might come in useful."

"We returned by the way we had come—our path lay far higher up the mountain than we are at present; I thought it was safer—and when we reached the bottom of that cliff again I once more looked into the cleft. It seemed quite dark inside, so we looked for a way down. There is no proper path, sahib, but the way is not very difficult although steep, and we reached the cleft in safety. It is very narrow, and the sides are almost sheer, but at one place there is a road which might be the dry bed of a stream. It has not been worn by the feet of men. Inside the cleft the floor was flat and sandy. There were no tracks of any sort, and I decided that this should be our hiding-place in case of necessity.

"Sahib, by this time I was very tired and almost overcome with fatigue. I thought that if you had been killed I would have seen a commotion from above or perhaps your body, that I could render you no useful aid until I had rested, and so I lay down and slept in the dark cleft."

Sher Khan was obviously distressed and apologetic at being forced to give in to nature.

"Further, sahib," he continued, "I knew that there was little chance of my entering the temple during daylight, and so I thought I had better take my rest while I could, as fast as he could. He had travelled hard and made good time.

"I told him what had happened, and we decided to try and reconnoitre the temple from above. So

Mainly Women

Lip Make-Up For Day-Time

Heavy Emphasis A Mistake.

IN making up the lips for daytime do not emphasise 'cupid bow' contours, or heavily accent either the upper or lower lip. This has been a serious mistake to women in the past.

The truly smart woman will leave the vivid emphasis of eyes and lips, with perhaps a touch of face rouge, to the evening hours when it is most effective and more correct.

Sun-Tan Spoils The Skin

Imparts Leathery Appearance.

"SUN-TAN may be healthful and smart, but it will eventually make the skin less fine in texture, and give it that unwanted leathery look. Even the use of oil or ointments to prevent burning, and the many mixtures often used to keep the skin soft and restore natural oils will not counteract the harmful effect."

This is beauty advice from Lillian Rosine, who, as head of women's make-up for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, knows the skin and its proper care from her many years of experience with stars of the screen.

Sweet Simplicity In Skirts

Longer Styles For Spring.

PLEATS FOR SPORT WEAR

SKIRTS, for Spring affect a sweet simplicity which is very misleading, at any rate so far as afternoon styles are concerned, where they are usually cut on the bias and wrapped around the body in a subtle way.

All this is done with only one seam apparent, and this placed somewhere in the front of the skirt.

Sports skirts have groups of pleats placed at the front of back, or both, stitched a certain way down but not so low as heretofore or they are perfectly plain, less form-fitted perhaps over the hips, but just wide enough to insure perfect ease in walking.

The tendency seems to be pointing towards longer skirts all round. Informal afternoon and coat dresses are decidedly longer—usually hiding the calf.

Shoulder Importance

Padded Patches And Pleats.

THE rulers of the Paris world of fashion have one and all agreed to pay homage to our shoulders. One might go further and say that they cannot leave our shoulders alone.

These joints are to be adorned with padded patches or with pleats to give them roundness, or with organ-piped pleats running downwards towards our elbows, or with frills or ruchings facing heavenwards, or with flounces stiffened out side-ways, or with cordings or rough edges of the material placed on the top of the shoulder.

Sometimes these shoulder pieces are a continuation of a yoke and sometimes they start at the joint and go towards the elbow. You must not imagine for one instant that any of these devices are clumsy. The cut and workmanship is so perfect that there is no loss of balance and the finished effect is extraordinarily discreet.

Open Backs For Spring

Loose Coats Greatly Vary In Length.

Paris. ALL movements, so far as the fashion front is concerned, are now being massed at the rear. The demure approach of many an evening dress is belied by its siren's back, where elits to the waist, diamond and square cut-out effects afford a glimpse of gleaming flesh.

Many of the mid-season collections show afternoon dresses with evening slit backs, perhaps a little more attenuated, but unexpected all the same.

Swagger jackets, hooded effects, twin shoulder-to-hem pleats that stand out, accentuate backs and in-

Sleeves Less Conspicuous

Accordion Pleats Re-Appear.

SLEEVES have definitely entered upon an era of restraint for all informal clothes. Resort suits show sometimes a touch of emphasis at the shoulders in the form of a rolled epaulette or a crested effect just below the shoulder line, often repeated lower down the sleeve, above or below the elbow.

Accordion and sun-ray pleatings are making a timid reappearance and it is probable that this feature will be widely used in spring clothes.

dicte that the loosely fitted coat of lengths varying from finger-tip length to just above the skirt hem length are liable to be still very much in favour this coming spring.

Slenderising By Massage

Brisk Movements Necessary.

SLENDERISING as a whole means careful dieting and a regular half-hour daily performing corrective exercises.

But "local" slenderising can be achieved effectively by the use of massage allied to reliable slimming preparations, particularly those used externally.

Arms can be reduced by treating them to a night and morning "bath" of reducing soap and water, friction massage with a loofah glove which fits snugly over the hand, and a rough towel massage when drying.

Also brisk, circular arm movements will do much to slenderise the upper arms, but all these exercises must be done briskly and with the arms tensed.

MISS M. BASTO EXCELS

The Club de Recreio "A" eleven, runners-up in the Caer Clark Cup Hockey Competition last season and who are unbeaten to date, were very lucky to share the points with the Central British Association in a Cup match at King's Park yesterday, the game resulting in a goalless draw.

Poor shooting by the C.B.A. forwards in the second half of the game robbed them of victory. The Recreio asserted a definite superiority in the first half, but splendid defence work by Miss P. Woolley and Miss F. Walker kept the C.B.A. goal intact. The C.B.A. half-back line were also very sound.

Miss M. Basto was the pick of the Recreio, team giving a splendid display at full-back.

Miss G. Roza's Display In Goal.

The St. Andrew's Club Ladies registered their fourth victory in the Caer Clark Cup competition by defeating the Club de Recreio "B" eleven on the Marina ground yesterday.

Although definitely outclassed the Recreio junior gave a very good account of themselves, Miss G. Roza, in goal being the outstanding player in the team.

The Recreio held out very well in the first half, when only one goal, scored by Miss M. Woolley, was obtained against them. In the second half, however, the Saints added four more goals through Miss Woolley (2), Miss I. Gittins and Miss P. Gittins.

St. Andrew's:—R. Rose; G. White, E. Landolt, I. Woolley, J. Wong, M. Churn; F. Wong, I. Rogers, M. Woolley, I. Gittins and P. Gittins.

LINCOLNS LOSE BIG ADVANTAGE

SAINTS OR SOUTH CHINA FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

ANOTHER GAME ABANDONED

THE Lincolns, premier soccer league leaders, suffered their second successive defeat when the Borderers, decisively turned the tables on them yesterday, after being beaten by five clear goals in their first encounter, and it now looks very much as if St. Joseph's and South China, champions, are to be the only two serious challengers for the 1933-4 title.

The Saints won against the depleted Navy side and are now only a point in arrears of the leaders with two games in hand. South China are expected to come within a point of the Saints when they meet the Artillery this afternoon.

The Police entered the Second Round of the Senior Shield when they beat the Artillery by a goal scored by Brooks during extra time.

The Second Division game between South China and the Young Indians was abandoned by referee Slaughter eight minutes from time following the sending off of three players and a free fight between the remaining members of the two teams. South China were leading by a goal to nil.

FIRST DIVISION.

Lincolns Give Away Two Goals.

BORDERERS DESERVE WIN BY 4 GOALS TO 1.

The Borderers amply avenged their former 5-0 defeat at Kowloon yesterday when they turned the tables on the Lincolns by a score of 4 goals to 1.

The Borderers fully deserved their win, their defence easily withstanding the attacks of the Lincolns forwards and their halves, once they had settled down, dominating the game.

The Lincolns were weak in defence, being without their regular backs and goalkeeper. They are not now the team which carried all before them earlier in the season. A mistake by Roden early in the game gave the Borderers a decided advantage, as in all "needle" games an early goal means so much.

Smith was rarely troubled in the Borderers' goal. Mullane and Morrison protecting him well. Wallace and Podmore opened shakily, but after a while played splendid football. Wallace held Hocquard easily, and even in view of this Baldry was completely starved.

The Borderers right wing produced the best football, with Harris a great worker. Deacon was kept very busy by the Borderers' forwards. He cleared many dangerous situations, but is rather inclined to kick the ball instead of using his hands. Edmondson and Roden did not cover up sufficiently, leaving gaps for Forley to rush in, while Cork was the best half, though Dudley and Bett played quite well.

The Lincolns had three good inside forwards who combined well. McGuinness made many fine dribbles and Ridley worked hard in his usual style. The Borderers started off in rare style and should have been a goal up from the kick-off. Harris, with an open goal, shooting at Deacon.

Ridley Misses Chance

In the first Lincolns attack, McGuinness and Higgins made a good move and carried the ball into the Borderers' goalmouth, but Ridley shot yards over the bar when given a great chance to score.

Disaster then overtook the Lincolns. Duncan sent across a weak centre, which, in trying to clear, Roden deflected into his own goal.

The football was of the end to end variety with the Borderers forwards leading the more dangerous.

After 32 minutes Matthias flashed across a splendid centre which Hazelwood headed back for Harris to nod the ball past Deacon.

Immediately after the restart the Borderers should have gone further ahead when Forley ran through and fired in a great shot which was only partially saved by Deacon; with an open goal Forley shot against the crossbar.

From a free-kick for a foul against Higgins, the Lincolns reduced the lead, McGuinness heading through from Bett's centre.

The Borderers continued to have most of the play, but were decidedly lucky when another centre from Duncan was turned past Deacon by Bett for their second goal.

The game continued at a fast pace with Mullane and Morrison proving too good for the Lincolns forwards, and near the end Hazelwood scored a gem of a goal shooting through a crowd of players from at least 25 yards out.

Borderers:—Smith; Mullane and Morrison; Wallace, Podmore and Underwood; Matthias, Harris, Forley, Hazelwood and Duncan. Lincolns:—Deacon, Roden and Edmondson; Dudley, Cork and Bett; Baldry, McGuinness, Higgins, Ridley and Hocquard.

SIX NAVY PLAYERS IN THE PACK

CLUB MONOPOLISE BACK POSITIONS

TURNER TO PARTNER FORBES

THE COLONY RUGBY FIFTEEN TO MEET THE AUSTRALIAN UNIVERSITIES' TOURING TEAM ON THE CLUB GROUND ON THURSDAY IS COMPRISED OF SEVEN NAVY, SIX CLUB, AND TWO ARMY PLAYERS. THE FRONT AND BACK ROWS IN THE PACK HAVE BEEN FILLED WITH NAVY PLAYERS, THUS CAUSING LITTLE SURPRISE.

The side is by no means a representative one as Lt. Miers (Navy fly half), and Lt. St. Clair Ford and Lt. Currey (Navy wing threequarters) are on the injured list, while Lt. Evans and Lt. Nixon (Navy forwards), and Lt. Slater and Mid. Darley (Navy threequarters) are not at present in the Colony.

The Australian party, who arrive by the Kitano Maru on Thursday morning and who sail for Shanghai at midnight, have been granted permission to play games en route by the Japanese Rugby Union, who sponsored the tour.

The visitors will be met on their arrival by officials of the Hong Kong Football Club and members of the local Anzac Association.

They will be guests at the monthly tiffin of the Association and will then do what little sight-seeing is possible before 4 p.m. when a photograph of the two teams will be taken outside the Clubhouse at Happy Valley. The game is scheduled to commence at 4.15 p.m.

An informal dinner is being given by the Football Club at Gloucester Building at 8 p.m. tickets ($6.00, including drinks before dinner) being obtainable at the Clubhouse.

Tickets for the game ($1.00 and 50 cents) can be purchased from Mr. S. H. Garrod, c/o Canadian Pacific Steamships, Mr. G. C. Moutrie, c/o Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, or the Clubhouse.

Composition Of Side

Ten players from the University of Queensland, eight from the University of Sydney, two from the University of Adelaide, one from the University of Melbourne, and one from the University of Perth, have been included in the Australian team.

The selectors, who completed their choice by telephone, experienced considerable difficulty owing to the unavailability of several players, including some who were in the team originally chosen.

The following are players selected:—

Backs: R. Westfield (Sydney), full-back; captain; D. Buritt (Sydney), wing; J. C. E. Minnie (Queensland), wing; B. O'Connor (Adelaide), wing or centre; R. W. Hayes (Queensland), centre or wing; P. Clarke (Queensland), centre; F. R. Vincent (Queensland), centre; J. W. Evans (Queensland), five-eighths; H. Rees (Sydney), five-eighths; A. M. Barron (Sydney), half-back; E. S. Rogers (Sydney), utility back.

Forwards: C. F. McWilliam, vice-captain; R. Duval, R. Mackey (Sydney), R. P. Cutmore, C. T. Pearce, J. Ryan, H. Stumm, V. W. Wilson (Queensland), H. E. W. Lyons (Adelaide), T. R. B. Courtney (Melbourne), G. H. Burket (Perth).

The preponderance of Queensland representatives is due to the number of Sydney players who were unavailable for the tour. Among the players unable to make the trip were G. Elias, who was captain of the team originally selected, A. K. Kennedy, R. Booth, and K. Harris (Sydney), E. Dunlop and Pearson (Melbourne) and T. Keeble (Sydney) who was first reserve.

Westfield, Mackey, Clarke, and Vincent were State representatives this season. Players omitted who were strong candidates for the four vacancies include the Sydney three-quarters, E. Shepherd and R. Rankin, and the full-back D. G. Leggett.

The selectors preferred Clarke and Vincent as centres, and Hayes' excellent form in the University carnival matches won him a place. Rogers owes his inclusion to his versatility.

Mr. R. A. Martin, present of the Sydney University Rugby Union Club, and chairman of the council of the New South Wales Rugby Union, is the manager of the team, which will return to Sydney in the middle of March.

RUGBY

The Army retallanted and their efforts were soon rewarded when Gould crossed over after a bout of passing by the threequarters, Lloyd majoring the effort.

From the kick-off the Army pressed, and Metcalf gave the Army a four points lead when he crossed over in a good position for Lloyd to convert.

Just before the interval the Club again crossed the Army line when Turner executed a brilliant cut through to give King an easy try which McLellan converted to give the Club the lead by 11 points to 10.

In the second half play was very scrappy, continual offside play by the Army forwards spoiling the game. The Club went further ahead through Lammert, who crossed over in a favourable position for McLellan to add the goal points.

The Army pressed strongly and broke through the Club's defence for the last time when Gould went over for his second try. Lloyd failing with the kick.

CRITICAL DAYS FOR THE LEAGUE

Prestige Seriously Shaken By Its Friends'
Wavering Faith In Its Powers

By E. C. DENTLEY

FOUR years ago, on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the founding of the League of Nations, Lord Cecil of Chelwood—whose whole-hearted devotion to the cause of peace commands the world's respect—wrote:

"Unquestionably the League is advancing in strength and efficiency. It strides boldly along the path of peace, applauded by the world and led by the chief statesmen of Europe."

"It is the chief international force. Its influence on all world affairs is decisive."

That was a not untrue, if a highly-coloured, picture in the year 1923.

Since then there has been a change. On Monday last M. Avenol, the Secretary-General of the League and its chief permanent official, spoke thus of the position in the course of his address to a meeting of members of Parliament:

"The very large majority of countries in the world who still believe in the League appear to be losing confidence in its ability to deal effectively with the major problems of the day."

"In the last two years there has been admittedly a considerable reaction, and the League had lost in popularity and prestige."

SIGNOR MUSSOLINI

"To-day it is an absurdity"

This is certainly not an exaggerated account of the falling off in the general reputation of the League which has happened "in the last two years"—the period covered, that is to say, by the sittings of the Disarmament Conference and the affair of Manchuria.

The League of Nations stands to-day, in fact, at a most anxious crisis. The withdrawal of Japan last year has been followed lately by the withdrawal of Germany. And now there are the plainest indications that Italy is, at the best, a dubious and half-hearted adherent. A month ago Signor Mussolini threw all the forces which support the movement into confusion by declaring that "with the withdrawal of several Great Powers the League has now become an absurdity."

Later, the Fascist Grand Council passed a resolution to the effect that "the continued collaboration of Italy with the League of Nations shall be conditional on the radical reform of the League in its constitution, organisation and objectives within the shortest possible time."

Since Russia and the United States have held aloof from the outset, the position to-day is that Great Britain and France alone, out of the seven Great Powers, are declared supporters.

SOME ACHIEVEMENTS

What, then, is the record of the League? It must have not a little to its credit to have earned the position in which it stood after ten years of existence.

Above all, it is judged by its performance as an organisation for the peaceful adjustment of international disputes. It has many other functions, and they are invaluable ones; but in the general mind its stands as a mechanism for the prevention of war.

Up to the present time it has been called upon to deal with upwards of forty disputes, great and small. In most cases these were not disputes directly involving Great Powers. But all were of the kind which, before its machinery became available, could have led to a drift into largescale war. In the majority of these disputes the League has been able either to bring about a settlement or to give assistance to that end.

Perhaps the best of all examples of a complete settlement of a dangerous dispute is that of the defining, by a Commission, of the boundary between Turkey and Iraq, then governed by Great Britain as a Mandated territory.

STOPPING FIVE WARS

In five cases it succeeded in stopping war after hostilities had actually broken out. These were the disputes between Poland and Lithuania (1920), Yugoslavia and Albania (1921), Greece and Bulgaria (1925), Turkey and Iraq (1926), Bolivia and Paraguay (1928).

Even in one of these, the first of them, the besetting trouble of the League made its appearance. Hostilities between Poland and Lithuania were brought to an end, but Poland remained, and still remains, in possession of Vilna, the illegal seizure of which caused the fighting.

Again, in 1923, Italy, acting under great provocation, sent an ultimatum to Greece. Greece appealed to Geneva, but Italy, regardless of it, inflicted her own punishment by bombarding and occupying Corfu. The bombardment was an act for which the League should have been able to secure compensation for Greece, but Italy paid nothing.

The most important failure, and for itself the gravest in its consequences, was the Far Eastern dispute which led to the quitting of Japan. It was this that demonstrated to the world what had always been maintained by the critics of the League system—that in a case in which the League had at last gone to the extreme of formally condemning the action of a Great Power, it was unable to do more.

PRESSURE OF OPINION

Its Strongest Weapon

From another point of view, it bore out the apprehension of those who had held that the rules governing its action were too rigid to allow of a really equitable decision in a case in which there was no indisputable moral right on either side.

Apart from the category of disputes, national minorities included in certain countries were placed by the Treaties under the care of the League. There is no doubt that this has told in favour of their better treatment; for pressure of civilised opinion is the strongest weapon in the League's armoury. It is held by many that it was a mistake to attempt to furnish it with any other.

It is at least true that its having been furnished, by its constitution, with other means of pressure, which it has not used when it came to the point, has led to the discrediting of the League. It has not used them because of the rule that all its acts must be decided unanimously.

That rule, again, has been called a fatal weakness. It is certain, however, that it would never have come into existence at all but that rule being laid down in 1919. It preserved that sovereignty which no country was ready to compromise when joining the League. As Sir Eric Drummond, lately Secretary-General, has written: "The League as a powerful as the Governments which compose it desire to make it."

His wife heaved a sigh of relief. "Well, thank goodness," she said, "our Bobby won't have anything to fall over."

STRAINED NERVES — a sign that your food does not contain sufficient of the food elements that are necessary to make good the wastage of the nerve cells and tissues.

You need more nerve-restoring nourishment in an easily digested form. That is what "Ovaltine" will give you in supreme measure. Eggs are used liberally in "Ovaltine" — and eggs are rich in organic phosphorus — an essential element for building up brain and nerves.

But it must be "Ovaltine." It is so easily the best of all food beverages — so superior to imitations in the quality of its ingredients and the proportions in which these are combined.

Quality such as "Ovaltine" provides cannot be sold at a lower price. Only by adding large percentages of cheaper ingredients, such as sugar and cocoa, or by re-arranging the proportion of its ingredients, could the price be reduced. But "Ovaltine" would then lose its unique nerve-building properties.

NATIVE "FRIARS" BROTHERHOOD

Bishop Of Melanesia's
Three Protoges.
FOR MISSIONARY TRAINING

Sydney: Three native youths carrying quaintly marked sticks accompanied the Bishop of Melanesia, the Right-Reverend H. W. Baddeley, when he arrived in Sydney from a tour of the New Hebrides. The sticks are carried as a mark of their membership of a native brotherhood, organised on the lines of the old English friars. The native friars have vowed to remain celibate, to own no property and to receive no money.

Bishop Baddeley is taking them to his headquarters in the Solomons for special training as missionaries for work among the heathens of New Hebrides. The Bishop said that there was a great shortage of white clergy, but that native missionaries were showing great promise.—Reuter.

The League's repute, again, has not been improved by the international jealousies which have compelled, more than once, additions to the membership of the League Council, originally dominated by the Great Powers. Still less has the world been impressed by the rather shabby lobbying which takes place when the whole membership elects those States which to occupy the nonpermanent seats on the Council.

The events of this year have seen the attack on the League concentrated on another undeniable weakness. The German contention, supported by Italy, is that the League should not be bound up with the Peace Treaties of 1919, as it is, by the Covenant being made a part of each of those Treaties. This, it is said, perpetuates within its ranks the classification of victors and defeated.

President Wilson, to whose personal insistence this inclusion of the Covenant in the Treaties was due, imagined that it would fortify the position of the League. In fact, it is one of the "traps" to its existence.

POLITICAL FAILURES — But Humanitarian Successes. The Italian demands for reform are concerned mainly with the point that the League shall be dissociated from the Peace Treaties. The demand that the voting rights of small States shall no longer be equal to those of Great Powers is directed partly to the same purpose — to render less difficult the process of Treaty revision.

Both points raise difficulties of the most formidable kind. Yet it may now be said that there is very widespread admission of the need of a material reform of the League constitution, such as to allow of its becoming once more an organisation of international scope.

President Wilson, who, as its principal author, made errors enough, was wise at least in laying down the two essentials — that it should provide "an easy and constant method of confidence" on international difficulties, and also "a machinery of readjustment" for items of the Peace Treaties which he well realised, might prove fruitful of dissension.

The unreformed League has provided the one. Theoretically, it provides the other. Can a reformed League supply a "machinery of readjustment" that will do its work?

Failure on its political side ought not to be allowed to obscure — as it unhappily does — the record of its remarkable success in other directions. Financial assistance which it has organised has been the saving of Austria, Hungary, and Greece.

WORTH-WHILE SERVICE

There is, too, its wholly admirable record in humanitarian and social achievement. The story of its fight against epidemic disease in post-war Eastern Europe is one of the noblest in the history of medicine.

The League is carrying on tasks that were never attempted before in the international campaigns against the illicit drug trade, against slavery, against the traffic in women and children. What it has done for the relief of prisoners of war and of refugees has saved

Disarmament Hopes.

DISARMAMENT, still constituting one of the world's major and most pressing problems, is engaging the serious attention of the British Government. Sir John Simon's visits to Paris and Rome have apparently resulted in some concrete progress and the present prospect is that diplomatic negotiations may lead to some measure of agreement. Proposals are being modified and endeavour is now being concentrated on securing a broad agreement which will serve as a basis for more comprehensive action in the future. Conciliation between Germany and France is now distinctly possible as the result of the Anglo-Italian understanding which evidently was reached at Rome between Sir John Simon and Signor Mussolini. Chancellor Hitler's recent moderation gives further encouragement, and there is ground for optimism that actual achievement will be effected within the next few weeks. No date has been set for the resumption of the Disarmament Conference, but the League Council assembles to-morrow. In this connection the many Cabinet meetings in Downing Street during the past few days gain in significance. It is understood that the British Cabinet had before them a general conspectus of the Disarmament situation by the Foreign Secretary. The Government have the strongest possible motives, both interested and disinterested, why they should not relax their endeavours to find the middle way on which France and Germany may be content to walk abreast, however warily. A definite failure to break the present deadlock means no Disarmament Convention, the re-armament of Germany at her own pace, followed inevitably by a general renewal of armaments throughout the world, from which Britain, which, as Mr. Baldwin said the other day, has "disarmed to the very bedrock," could not and dare not stand aloof. Here, indeed, is motive enough for the British Government not to weary in well-doing, but to go on trying and to do everything in its power to help. Great Britain's position towards Germany is that the principle of equality of status on which the Government of the Reich lay the utmost emphasis should be translated into reasonable action. It is just; it is wise; it is necessary. Statesmanship cannot but realise that it is far better for all concerned that the measure of re-armament conceded to Germany as her right should be regulated rather than left unregulated, since what was unregulated would tend very soon to be unlimited. Germany has put no definite figures into her claim, though that of 300,000 for her Short-Term Army has been freely mentioned. The whole discussion to date has been conducted in the most general terms — preliminary to the vital discussion later of definite figures and categories. France, however, is unwilling to make any concession at all unless she receives further guarantees of security from Great Britain. It is the old argument which has cropped up time and again in various forms since the war, yet Great Britain's answer of recent years has always been the same. It is that she can enter into no further commitments which pledge her to armed intervention. By the Treaty of Locarno she guarantees to France her eastern frontier against unprovoked attack by Germany. She can give no more frontier guarantees — the universal weight of British opinion in all parties is dead against it. Nor can she pledge herself to automatic sanctions in relation to any other alleged breach of this or that article of any Disarmament Convention. The idea that Great Britain will tie her hands and bind herself to take the field if Germany were even credibly believed to have re-armed beyond the limits allowed by a Convention is quite impossible. Britain will always retain freedom to decide for herself in a matter of such tremendous import. Moreover, the time to decide is when the occasion has arisen. No one knows how the international situation will look in 1935 or 1936. Who, for example, twelve months ago, would have deemed possible a German-Polish detente? The moral is that tragic views of what is bound to happen in the future are often wrong. The best counsel is to postpone irrevocable decisions and to persevere with the task of finding a satisfactory solution of the Disarmament problem.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 88.

Crabs and Carnivores.

On our way back from the Agricultural Show at Shoung Shui on January 6 we halted at Tai Po market and made an inspection of the miscellaneous collection of creatures offered for sale. There were freshwater crabs with furry legs, a deformed mud-turtle with a hump-back which from its disinclination to bite gave me the impression that it was a family pet, a pangolin in a cage a little larger than itself and various other inhabitants of the streams and mountain slopes of the Colony. I purchased a strange marine fish for 10 cents, — pink in colour with a face like a horse's mouth, about 2 feet in length and shaped like a bilaterally compressed eel. This was wrapped in a piece of newspaper and transferred to a pocket. But it is of two carnivores that I wish to write in detail.

The Ferret-badger or Tree-civet.

Much confusion exists locally concerning the different carnivores that inhabit the wilder parts of the Colony. Accounts in the local press occur from time to time relating to the appearance of a tiger, a leopard, wolves, civet-cats, others, badgers, wild-cats, etc., but apart from the first two animals little is known about the species or habits of our carnivores. We should like to clear up the identity of these creatures and would value observations and still more specimens, if skins the skull should be included where possible. The Natural History Museum South Kensington has promised assistance and has asked for specimens.
The animal known locally as a Civet-cat is not a true Civet-cat at all. The true Civet, we believe, does occur here but cannot be abundant whereas the creature which erroneously is called a Civet is relatively common. The Civet-cat belongs to the first section of the Carnivora which contains the Cats, Civets, the Aard Wolf and the Hyenas but the Tree-civet, or more correctly the Ferret-badger, belongs to the third section which includes the 3 families (1) Bears; (2) Racoons and Pandas; (3) Otters; Skunks Ferret-badgers and Badgers; and Weasels with their relatives. It is the sub-family containing the Skunks, Ferret-badgers and Badgers in which we are interested. Skunks are found only in America. Swinhoe (P.Z.S. 1870) refers to a Chinese Badger sent him by Dr. Harland from Hong Kong so presumably the true Badger occurs in the Colony though we have not yet seen a specimen. All specimens sent me under the names of Badgers or Civet-cats have been representatives of one species of Ferret-badger a group of animals which may form a connecting link between the skunks and the badgers. It has, in a much diluted form, the smell of the former and a facial resemblance to the latter. The species is Helictes moschatus first described by Gray from Canton in 1831.

A full grown living specimen of this Ferret-badger was exposed for sale in Tai Po Market; only a cursory glance was paid to it but it appeared to be similar to the several specimens I have seen before. The Ferret-badgers can be distinguished externally by their somewhat weasel-like form, though they are less slender, their strong fore-claws which are much longer than the claws of the hind feet, greatly developed cartilaginous snout, and their colour which is brownish-grey above, more or less hoary, whitish below and with white facial markings on forehead, cheeks, and ears, often with more or less of a white median line extending from the nose spot to the shoulders. From the Chinese Badger, Mos m. leptorynchus, they can be distinguished by the longer tail and longer body and by the pale under surface that of the Badger being blackish to blackish brown.

The Chinese Tiger-cat.

Before leaving Tai Po Market we came across a group of people watching a man stretching a fresh skin on a board. The paws, tail and mask had been loosely filled with rice husks. The animal obviously been caught by one fore-leg in a trap and we were informed that it came from Tap Mun. It was a lovely pelt and I purchased it. It was the skin of Felis bengalensis chinensis, the Chinese small spotted Tiger-cat, to give it its full and correct name. It is the animal that is known locally as a Wild cat. A detailed description of this species will follow in a subsequent article.

THE ORIENT AND SILVER CURRENCY

How Britain Can Aid China.

SIR G. B. HUNTER'S PLEA

London.
"For want of purchasing power, China and India (with more than one-third of the world's population) are not absorbing their share of the world's natural and manufactured production."

With these words Sir G. B. Hunter, K.B.E., launches a plea for the freer use of silver in a booklet just published here on "China, India and Silver."

"Is it too soon," he asks, "for any united aid to China? Can we not take any combined action yet? Then let us, in the meantime, do what we can do by ourselves for China and India's benefit and our own. It may not lift the world, or lift us out of the world depression; but it will be a contribution towards it that is well worth making. It may and should lead to a something much greater."

"There are many ways in which silver can be beneficially used in addition to gold. For us, a purchase of silver would provide a safe and sound metallic 'backing' for an increase of currency and credit to any desired extent without having to maintain a gold and silver ratio, and without necessitating any special class of notes, and without uncontrolled inflation. Whether such additional currency and credit is needed and would be used is another question. I believe it is needed. The purchasing power of Great Britain and the purchasing power of China and India would be increased."—Router.

MEDIAEVAL CURSE ON THIEF

"To Be Kicked Through Eternity."

STOLE SACRED ROMAN RELIC

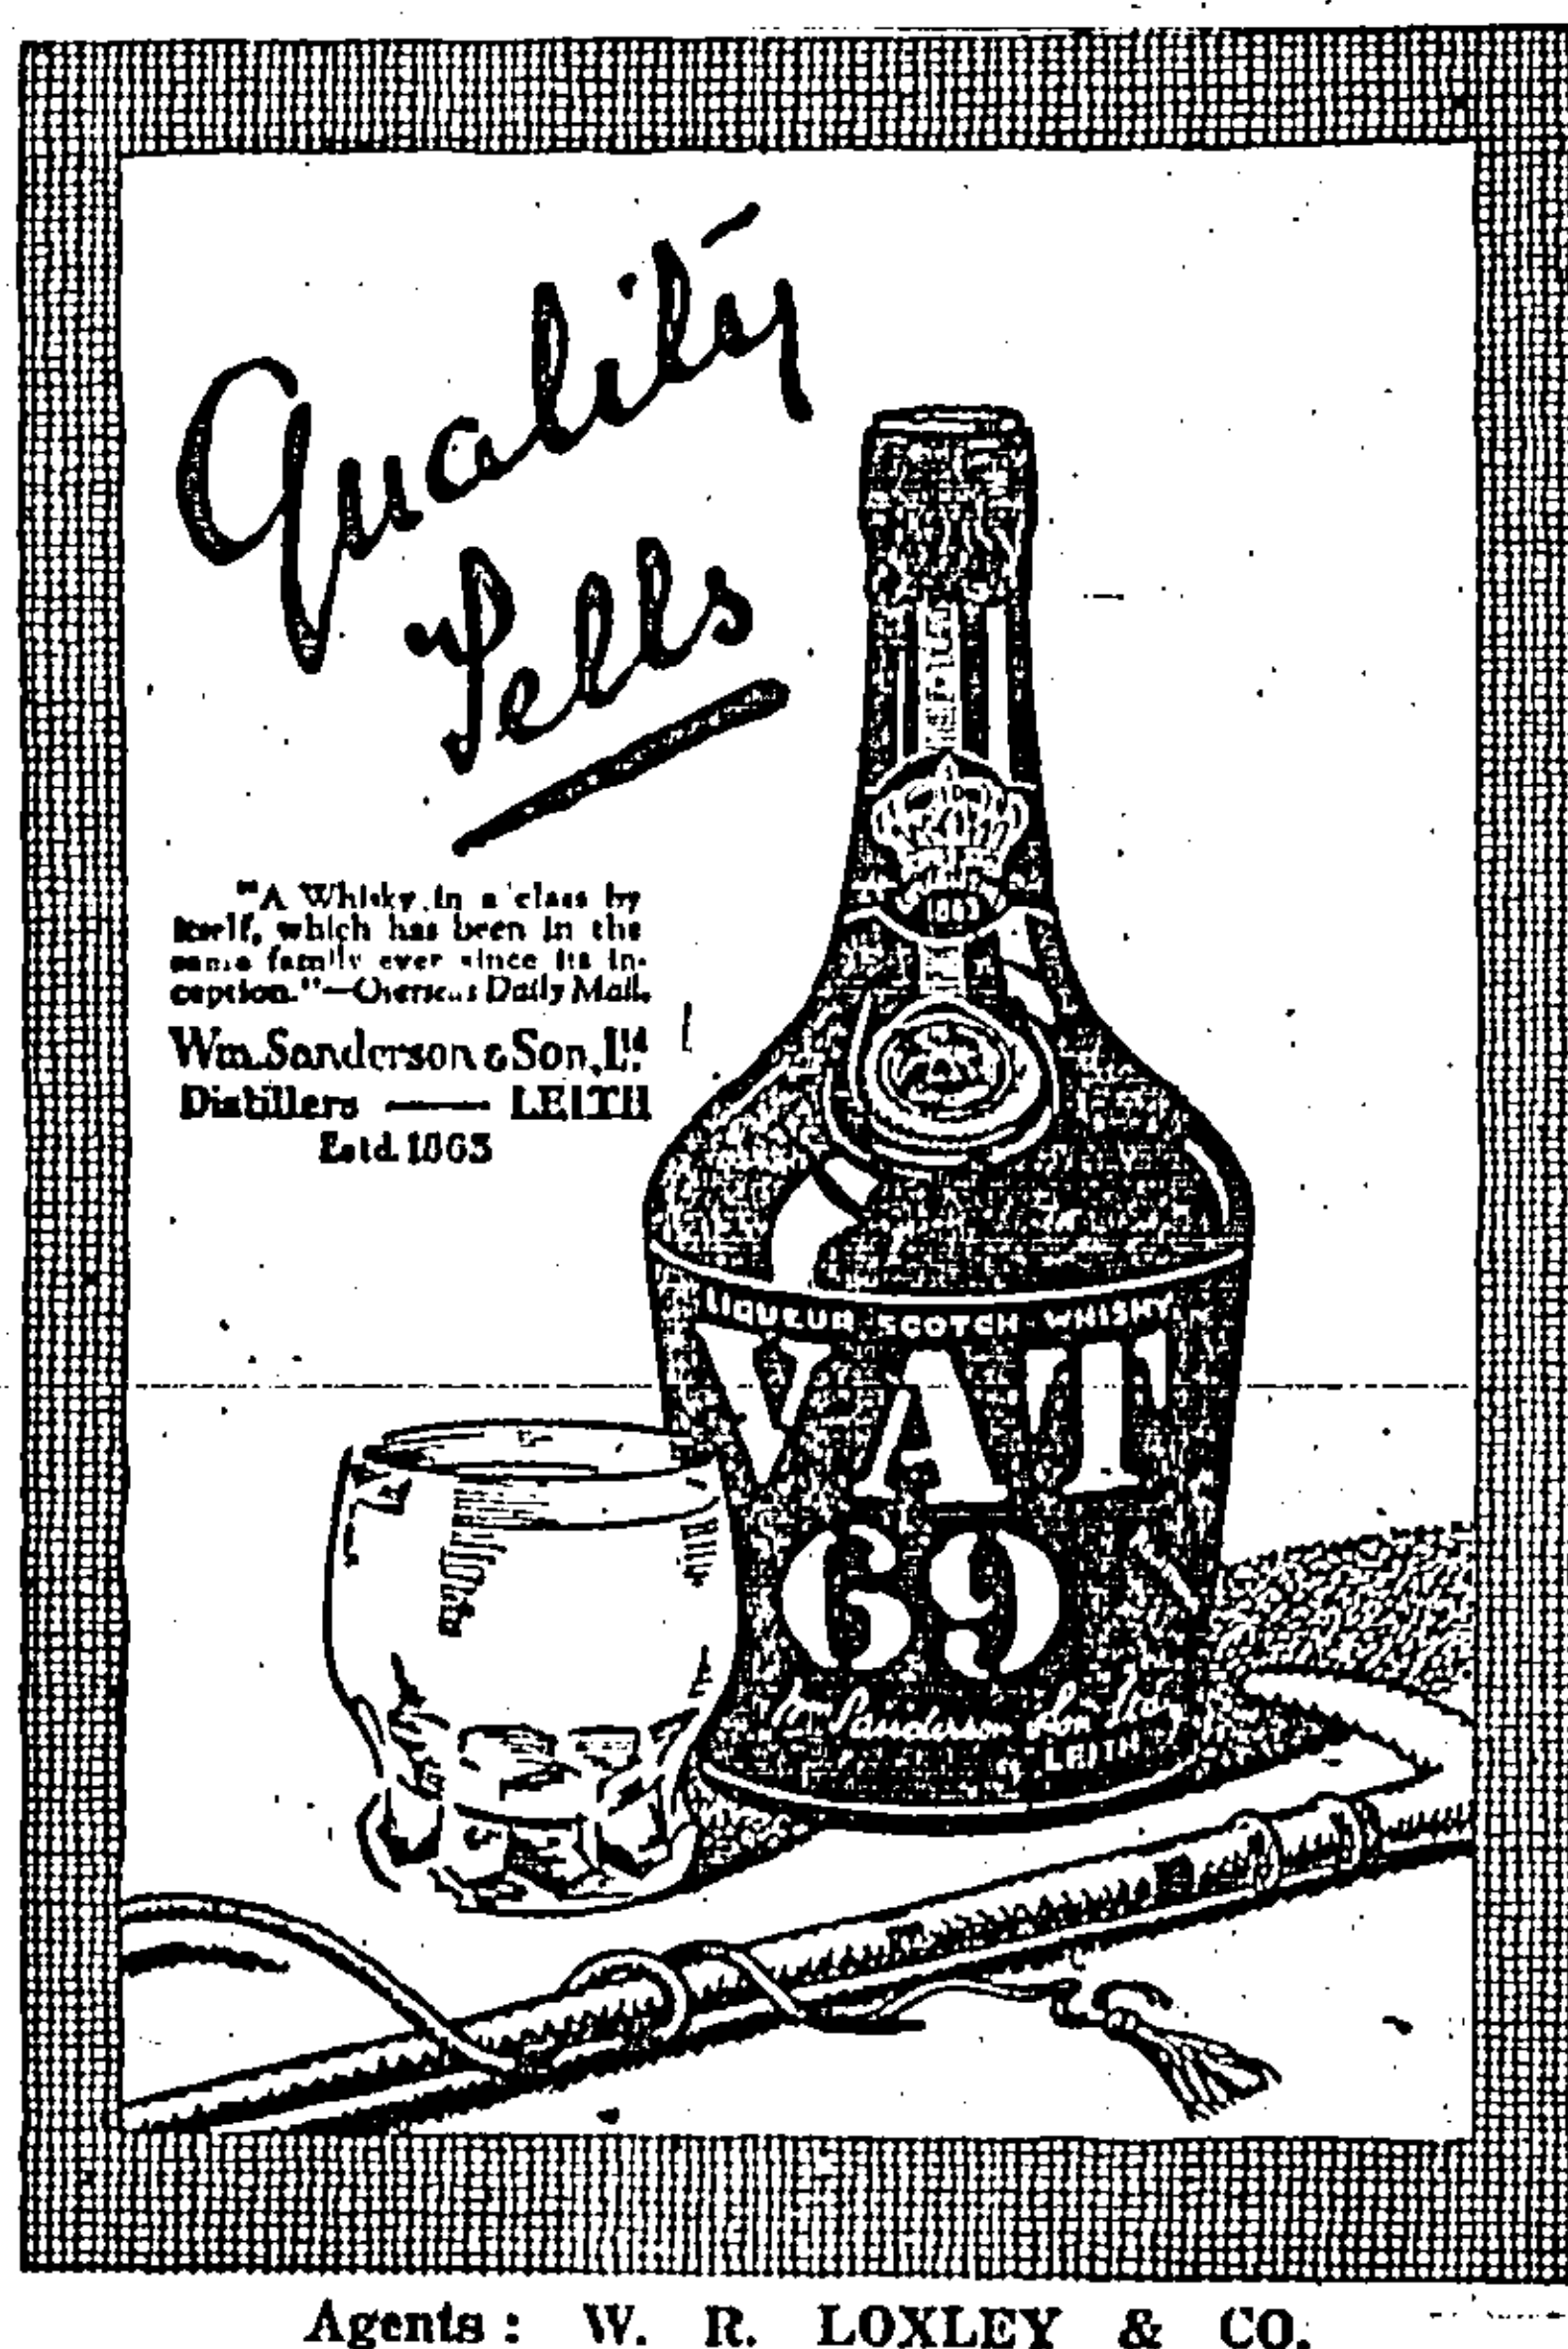

Paris.
A mediaeval curse has been placed by the Abbe of St. Nicholas de Chardonnet, in Paris, on an unknown thief who has stolen from the church a 1,600-year-old holy relic—the foot of St. Victor, a Christian martyr of the fourth century.

Besides offering a reward for the recovery of the relic the Abbe warns the thief that unless he returns it he will be kicked through eternity by the saint's foot.

St. Victor, a Roman officer stationed at Marseilles, is said to have disobeyed the command of the emperor, to burn incense to Jupiter. Instead, he threw down Jupiter's altar, breaking a statue of the god into fragments.

As a punishment his right foot was cut off. Then he was put to death. And the foot was brought to Paris, where it has been venerated ever since.—Router.

STONE-AGE NATIVES IN NEW GUINEA

Explorers Discover New Tribe.

SEA SHELLS AS CURRENCY

Sydney, N.S.W.
Four white men returned to civilisation recently after an exploring trip through the wilds of New Guinea, during which they traversed an area of 4,500 square miles, and came in contact with 200,000 natives whose existence was previously unknown. During the journey, which lasted five months, they covered 1,000 miles, and their explorations would have been impossible had aeroplanes not co-operated with them and carried food and supplies.

The four men were Mr. J. L. Taylor, assistant district officer in the Territory; and Messrs. M. J. Leahy, D. Leahy, and K. Spinks. Messrs. M. J. Leahy and Spinks were employed by New Guinea Goldfields Ltd., to prospect certain sections of the area between the Bismarck Range and the Papuan territorial boundary. The Administration desired to know something of the area, and it was decided to avoid duplication and to send the parties out together.

Mr. Taylor at present is in Sydney on a holiday trip, said that around the headwaters of the Purari River the party found native races which had not been heard of before. In all, about 200,000 natives were discovered. They were a most intelligent people, employing methods of afforestation which would not be out of place in a civilised community, and they were tilling the ground in an extensive fashion.

Chinese-Like Gardens.
The area explored was one of the most fertile and healthy in the whole of New Guinea, Mr. Taylor said. It had an elevation of between 5,000 and 7,500 feet, and was mainly grassy plain country. Trees were not plentiful, but the natives planted the seed of the forest oak in suitable places, spacing them out in a long straight line in the way used in modern afforestation schemes. The people's staple item of diet was the sweet potato, which was cultivated intensively. "I can only compare their gardens with Chinese market gardens," said Mr. Taylor. "The ground was tilled with wooden hoes, but the stone implements used by the natives were among the finest ever used by a stone-age people."

About half the people lived in villages, Mr. Taylor explained, with 30 to 100 circular houses in each village. About Mt. Hagen, however, the people lived in isolated homesteads, each family living away from the rest of the tribe. The people were a most peaceable race, and Mr. Taylor was able to trace no cannibalism. Unfortunately, Mr. Taylor and his companions were not able to spend sufficient time to conduct a complete investigation of the customs of the natives.

Shaven Faces Cause Wonder

At one village a curious incident occurred. All the natives were heavily bearded, and had a patriarchal appearance. When the four white men entered the village they were received hospitably, but they noticed that the natives were curious about something. Finally, the chief of the village, by the aid of an expressive code of signs asked "What is wrong with you men? Where are your beards?"

Mr. Taylor was interested in the currency system used by the natives. In the course of centuries large numbers of sea shells have been brought into the area, and the various types of these have different values. The most valuable is the gold lip shell. One of these is worth a pig, and four of them constitute the usual marriage settlement.

Mr. Taylor said that the work of the expedition was facilitated by the use of aeroplanes. Machines owned by Guinea Airways, Ltd., and Holden's Ltd., were used to transport food and supplies to the expedition as it made its way through hitherto unknown country. Seven native police and eighty carriers were taken on the journey, and at suitable intervals the whole party set to work to build aerodromes. Then a system of smoke signals was used to guide aeroplanes. Many trips were made by Messrs. Grabowski, Gurney, and Chatter, of Guinea Airways, and Mr. T. O'Dea of Holden's.

JEWELLER'S SHOP BROKEN INTO

Strange Conduct Of Lincoln's Private.

CONFESSES TO THEFT

On Friday night Private John Henry Sanby aged 21, of "C" Company, Lincolnshire Regiment, absconded himself from barracks at Shamshuipo and at 12.30 yesterday morning is said to have smashed the plate-glass window of the Bogdatsky Jewellery store at the corner of Peking and Hankow Roads, Kowloon, opposite the Star Theatre.

If then, it is alleged, proceeded to help himself to a miscellaneous collection of jewellery, clocks, etcetera, loaded them into a rickshaw and took them back to barracks, where he set them out on exhibition in the barrack-room.

It was erroneously reported originally that five Chinese were concerned in the affair, but it now appears that Private Sanby carried out the raid single-handed, according to his own story.

About daybreak yesterday he again left barracks and, going to the shop, confessed the theft to the proprietor, who gave him into custody. He was taken back to camp by the police, who recovered most of the stolen property.

Subsequently he was charged at Yau-mai Police Station and again taken back to camp, where he is now in custody. He will be tried in a civilian court.

One of the articles not recovered is believed to be in the possession of another soldier; this the police expect to recover.

Private Sanby enlisted in the Lincoln's only two years ago.

Happy Afternoon For The Youngsters.

RECREATION CLUB GIVES CHRISTMAS TREAT

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent on Friday by the children of the members of the Royal Naval Dockyard Recreation Club. Some 90 children were entertained, while about 100 parents were present.

See-saws, Aunt Sallys and a chute were the principal side shows, while "Uncle Rumbustikin" added greatly to the enjoyment of the afternoon with his clever conjuring tricks.

Father Christmas, too, arrived by aeroplane and very appropriately entered by the chimney. Mrs. Elliott, the wife of Commodore Frank Elliott, O.B.E., R.N., distributed the gifts. After the distribution three hearty cheers were given for Mrs. Elliott, Santa Claus and others who were responsible for the success of the afternoon.

At the conclusion of the entertainment Diana Hosking, the little daughter of the Honorary Secretary, presented Mrs. Elliott with a handsome basket of flowers.

RADIATOR CAP THIEF CAUGHT.

Eight Weeks' Gaol For Unemployed Man.

Sentence of eight weeks' hard labour was imposed by Mr. Balfour at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning on Wu Lu, unemployed, for stealing a motor car radiator cap in Queens Road Central.

The owner of the car had parked it in Jervois Street and on returning about two hours later discovered that the cap was missing.

Accused was arrested with the cap in his possession.

Mr. Leahy said that he had carefully prospected all the area passed through. Although there were traces of gold in many spots, he did not think it would warrant exploitation on a large scale. Now Guinea goldfields had decided not to make any further investigations for the time being. Mr. Leahy said that he was anxious to go "further" into the hinterland, and, if possible, to reach the Dutch border. He intended to return next year, and proposed to float a company to finance his prospecting operations.

Mr. Grabowski, pilot of Guinea Airways, said that from the aerial aspect the expedition had been fairly simple. The system of smoke signals used had made it quite easy to locate the party.

OBTAINING MONEY BY FRAUD

Forged Letters Twice Successful.

SIX MONTHS' GAOL FOR TRICKSTER

Having succeeded in obtaining two sums of money from a relative by means of forged letters, Ma Sik-kee, an unemployed Chinese, made a third attempt, but was arrested, the fraud having meanwhile been discovered.

Appearing before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Police Court yesterday on charges of obtaining $60 and $50 from Kwok Ping Fu, living at 189 Connaught Road West, he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three months' hard labour on each count, the sentences to run consecutively.

Detective Sergeant Fender said that the defendant twice presented his relative with a forged letter, in the name of an uncle in Macao, asking for a loan. In this way he received $60 on December 5 and another $50 on December 14. The complainant in the meantime having written to his uncle in Macao, discovered that the letters were forgeries and had the accused arrested when he presented a third letter of the same nature on January 11.

ATTEMPTED FRAUD ON SHIPPING FIRM

Forged Order For Payment of $200.

GAOL FOR UNEMPLOYED CHINESE

An unemployed Chinese, Mak po-wing, was charged before Mr. Balfour at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning with attempting to defraud Leung Wai-yin, of the Shing Kee Company, 95 Wing Lok Street East, of a sum of $200.

Inspector Murphy, prosecuting, stated that a man in New Zealand had been in the habit of sending money through the shipping office of the Shing Kee Company.

A letter which arrived from him on January 3 was taken from the box and later replaced, the contents having been tampered with. On January 11 accused produced a chit requesting payment to the amount of $200 but was questioned when he called for the money, as the writing on the chit did not compare with that of previous letters received. As the applicant could produce no guarantee that the money was intended for him he was arrested.

Later he said that someone had asked him to try this trick. Sentence of two months' hard labour was imposed.

EXPOSING INDECENT PICTURES.

Wanchai Shopkeeper

Pleading not guilty, the defendant stated that the pictures could be obtained in other places in Hong Kong, and that they were artistic in nature.

Mr. Hamilton: "People don't buy them because they are artistic, but because they are pictures of naked women."

"Mountains Speak To The Soul"

Hills That Played Big Part In Life

INFLUENCE ON INTELLECT

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

THIS is the season for tramps. Not the kind, who in the Old Country, wander idly from place to place, living on passing charity, but for getting away, while the weather is cool, off the beaten tracks and away from the crowds and noise.

For the keen walkers the flat country has little attraction. They demand the variety only given by hills and valleys. Their feet (as Kipling puts it) are "ever turning to the sky-line." They want to see what view is given from the top, what lies beyond the crest.

We are singularly fortunate in Hong Kong with our hills. Away back behind Kowloon they rise up as far as the eye can see, asking for sound wind and limbs to penetrate their secrets. For those who want to venture further afield there lie the hills of Lan-Tau.

It is a very natural thing this longing for the hills. They do not speak to our intellects only, but also to our souls. That was why Zeus in the olden days used to speak to men upon Mount Ida. The intellect may be as a lowland scene, but the spirit of a man is always highland.

Have you ever noticed what a tremendous part the hills played in the life of Jesus Christ? They came into His story again and again. Palestine is a country of hills; indeed this little land consists simply of one long range lying between the maritime plain which borders the Mediterranean on the west, and the deep gorge of the Jordan Valley on the east. From Beersheba in the south to Lebanon in the extreme north, the hills form almost an unbroken chain. Nazareth itself lies cradled in the surrounding hills, so that from His childhood He amongst them and grew to love them.

In a book called "The Hidden Years" (which with great and sympathetic insight tries to fill in for us, the missing story of our Lord's boyhood) John Oxenham has pictured with what is surely a true instinct, the fascination which the hills held for the boy Jesus. I hope next week to write of these years again.

Christ Taught In Hills.

It is by no means fanciful to suppose that it was amongst their solitudes, under starlit nights, or facing the freshening dews-winds on their summits, that He heard the call of God, saw the vision of the Kingdom, and awoke to the consciousness of His Divine destiny. There is so place like the hills for kindling the imagination.

And so in the Gospels, over and over again, we find ourselves going with Him up into the hills. It was into a mountain that He took His disciples apart, drawing them away from the noisy thronging multitudes, to give them that wonderful, and utterly unique, teaching which we know as the "Sermon on the Mount." He knew the value of environment, and how, amidst the peace and majesty of the hills, the hearts and minds of men are best attuned to hear the voice of God. It revealed the instinct of a great Teacher.

So again, when it came to that all-important decision as to whom He should choose to share with Him the building of the Kingdom, it was towards the hills that He turned His steps. "And in those days He went out into a mountain to pray and continued all night in prayer unto God, and when it was day He called unto Him His disciples, and of them He chose twelve." And there were many other nights when He sought, the companionship of the hills to be alone with His Father, to recover His strength.

Hill Of Crucifixion. It was up a mountain that He took just three of them, to see a vision of His glory, which should help them, in that day when they should see Him battered and mocked and bleeding, trailing His cross through the valley of humiliation to ties in railways.

the hillside of Calvary. It must have been a poignant hour for Him, when He told them of His resolve about the Cross, and the urgency of that hour for Him and for them, drew Him instinctively to the mountain-top. It was from the mount called the Mount of Olives that He took His last look at Jerusalem, girdled by the hills, and longed to gather her people to His heart. On a mountain He drew His disciples together to give them His last commands; from a hill-top near Bethany He was parted from them.

Thus the presence of the hills comes everywhere into His life, and a love of them is always characteristic of great souls. Experience teaches us that it is the exception for people who have a real love for the mountains not to have a certain charm of mind and character. Being what He was, He could not have failed to love them; and it is easy to see why.

Peace And Solitude. On the hills there is a peace and solitude, and a sense of God's nearness as nowhere else. We do not always realize how continually He was in the midst of crowds of people. Wherever He went they flocked around Him. More than once He had to send them away in utter weariness, and go off alone.

Then again the hills have a cleansing power. The clean fresh winds of heaven blow over their slopes, like a purifying stream. Many a time must He have felt the need of that cleansing for soul and body—the need to escape for a little while from the atmosphere of sin and squalor and dreadful disease which He breathed daily in the crowded towns and villages of Galilee. You cannot be among it all day and every day as He was, and escape unscathed in your own soul.

There are glimpses given us here and there in the Gospels of how that daily environment told upon Him, and we can understand Him being driven to escape to the purity of the hills where the breath of God might breathe upon Him.

And in the everlasting hills there is strength. "The strength of the Hills is His also." On the summits of those rugged peaks that have borne the tempests of ten thousand years there is a symbol of the message of the gospel, no less than in the lilies of the field. We need a gospel that shall be deep and high, that far above all voices, will brood on us with peace and power.

How much the hills must have meant to Him, and in the end it was a hill on which He died.

LONDON
TOPICS

OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
London, Dec. 28.

Fastidious Film Critics.

The London County Council are inquiring into the film "I'm No Angel," in which Miss Mae West stars. The inquiry was inspired by the shocked comment of the newspaper film critics, who have suddenly become fastidious.

In this film Miss West is funnier, but no more vulgar, than the late Marie Lloyd; and when the name of Marie Lloyd is mentioned members of the L. C. C., like other Englishmen, smile indulgently. "Dear old Marie!"

There is another film in London in which a King of England is depicted as a voluptuary and a buffoon; in which the loudest laughs of the evening were secured when the principal actor made repulsive noises over a meal.

This film did not shock the film critics. On the contrary, it is what they call putting England on the sereep.

Ancient and Modern.

The most modern of the City Guilds, the Guild of Air Pilots and Navigators, used ancient ceremony and the centuries-old hall of the Skinners' Company for the installation of their Master and Deputy-Master recently.

The new Master is Captain F. E. Guest, M. P., a former Secretary of State for Air and a civil pilot.

The Deputy-Master is Captain O. P. Jones, one of Imperial Airways' chief pilots. All cross-channel air travellers know him because of his short pointed beard. He has nearly 10,000 hours' flying to his credit.

The first Master and Deputy-Master, Sir Sefton Brancker and Squadron-leader Johnston, died in the R101 disaster.

The officer of Master has remained vacant for three years.

Populating the Empire.

It is learned that members of Parliament are backing strongly a scheme of Empire settlement.

Already 180 members have signed a resolution declaring that active steps should be taken to consider schemes for the redistribution of the population in the Empire. It urges the Government to consult with the Dominions and Colonies with a view to the promotion of organised Empire settlement.

More supporters of the movement are being enrolled, and the Government will be asked to provide a day for a debate.

Food and Politics.

The new Kitchen Committee of the House of Commons includes only two women, Miss Thelma Cazalot and Mrs. Shaw.

Among its members are two baronets, four knights, three men with military titles, two miners, a co-operator, and a barrister.

These are thin times for the Commons catering department. The Government have a huge majority, and there is no danger of snap divisions.

"Dinner leave," therefore, is easy to obtain.

All night sittings are unpopular, so the demand for bacon and eggs has decreased.

The Kitchen Committee is sighing for more excitement in politics.

Mr. Justice Macnaghten.

Mr. Justice Macnaghten, who recently over-rode the objection of the Home Secretary to the production of a police document in court, comes of a long line of lawyers. His father was a Lord of Appeal, and other members of the family have held high judicial office.

In view of the association of the Commissioner of Police with his ruling it is recalled that kinman, the late Sir Melville Leslie Macnaghten, was an Assistant Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police from 1903 to 1918.

Mr. Justice Macnaghten is fearless in his comments, and his judgments are rarely challenged. A nervous delivery hides great decisiveness and determination.

Census of Aerodromes.

A "census" of private and commercially owned aeroplanes in Great Britain shows that there are only four Government-owned civil aerodromes. Croydon, in Surrey, is the chief one; the others are in Kent. All are on the London-Paris air route.

There are also eight Government-owned seaplane stations and one airship station at Cardington, Bedfordshire.

London is ringed with civil aerodromes. On the west are those of Heston and Hanworth; on the north at Hatfield; in the east at Romford; and Gravesend guards the Thames.

There is an aerodrome on the Kingston by-pass, one at Addington, a new one at Redhill, and, of course, Brooklands. All these are within 20 miles of London.

Many Landing Grounds. There are 35 public civil aerodromes in the provinces and 32 aerodromes in the possession of light aircraft clubs. That suitable landing grounds are plentiful is shown by the fact that touring "air circuses" last summer visited 400 centres and found a big field at each.

A few owners of aeroplanes have their own aerodromes. The Prince of Wales has one at Smith's Lawn, Windsor, and one at Sandringham. Mr. W. Lindsay Everard, M.P. for Melton, has one of Ratcliffe. Colonel L. A. Strange has one at Chobham, and Mr. A. C. M. Jackson has one at Slough.

Manners and Man. There was general comment in the House of Commons, after Mr. Thomas's recent announcement about Ireland on the new manner of the Dominions Secretary.

He read every word and did not permit himself even a momentary deviation from his brief. He strove to create an atmosphere. His way with hecklers was mild almost beyond belief.

One imagined that he was acting the formula with which he concluded his Note to Mr. de Valera: "Your most obedient and humble servant."

The adroitness of both Notes came in for high praise. Mr. de Valera had 15 days to prepare his case. The British reply was dated six days later than the Irish Note.

Members, trying to identify the author of the British Note, agreed that there was a lawyer's hand in it.

Rusholme Reflections. The result of the Rusholme by-election will give little satisfaction to the Government.

The Labour poll is almost 3000 higher than its previous best in 1929, and nearly double the figure at the last election.

The Conservative majority is the lowest since the War, except for the year 1923. Then the late Charles Masterman won the seat as a Liberal.

The Land Song. Dr. McDougall, the Independent Liberal, who lost his deposit, certainly aided the brighter politics movement. He is said to have sung the "Land Song" on the steps of the Town Hall during the counting of the votes.

This almost forgotten anthem was the song of the moment during the two 1910 elections. Its popularity far surpassed that of "Stanley Boy" in 1929, and it had the advantage of fitting an excellent tune, "Marching through Georgia." This is the chorus:

The land, the land! 'Twas God who gave the land!
The land, the land! The ground on which we stand!
Why should we be beggars with the ballot in our hand?
God gave the land to the people!

LINCOLNS SUSTAIN SEVERE SOCCER CHECK

East Lanes. Win In Last Two Minutes.

HORNER SEALS KOWLOON'S FATE

At Sookunpoo yesterday the East Lanes defeated Kowloon by the odd goal in five in an evenly contested game, the winning goal being obtained during the last two minutes. A draw would have been a better result.

The East Lanes were the first to attack, and Smith went close with a nice header from Salmon's pass, the ball skimming the cross-bar. Shortly after, Tuley obtained, and sent a perfect pass along to SMITH, who beat Cord with a well placed header. From the restart, Kowloon broke away, and REED went through to beat Harmsworth with a low shot to score, the equaliser just before the interval. From the resumption the East Lanes pressed, and when Jones conceded a corner Tuley took the flag kick for SMITH to regain the lead with a brilliant header. Kowloon then repeated their first half effort, as REED broke through from the kick-off and sent in a terrific drive from fifteen yards, which left Harmsworth standing.

Salmon and Smith and Tuley were very dangerous at this period, and were indulging in some very good passing movements.

Five minutes from time, Salmon went close with a good shot. Another attack resulted in a corner against Kowloon, and from Salmon's centre, HORNER sent in a low drive to score the winning goal two minutes from time.

East Lanes: Harmsworth; Swain, Gorman; Rothwell, Richardson, North; Salmon, Horner, Smith, Woods and Tuley.

Kowloon: Cord; Bliss, Jones; Davies, Yeomans; McQuade; Cook, Elliott, Reed, Blake and White.

Re-taken Penalty By Hynes Wins Game.

RECREIO UNLUCKY

At King's Park the Club were fortunate to record a victory over the Recreio by 3 goals to 2.

On their showing the Recs fully deserved a point, and it was only in the last few minutes that the Club scored the winning goal.

The Club were the first to attack, but were quickly repulsed and the Recreio, showing fine team-work, launched a series of dangerous attacks, Rodger alone preventing an early lead.

At the other end Bickford and Strange had good shots charged down by defenders.

After a blank first half the Club forwards broke away and opened the scoring, Dominy netting during a melee in the Recreio goalmouth. A few minutes later Dominy ran through and gave Marques no chance with a good shot.

These quick reverses urged the Recreio to greater efforts and they were awarded a penalty, but Sousa shot inches wide. Continuing the pressure, the Recreio reduced the lead when Sousa scored after a fine solo effort. After this success the Recreio attacked vigorously and eventually drew level when Gomes scored with a fine drive.

Near the end the Club were awarded a penalty. Marques made a fine save, but to the surprise of the onlookers the kick was ordered to be retaken and Hynes made no mistake this time.

Recreio: Marques; Silva Netto, Bower, Gonsalves, Delgado, Maher; McGrann, Castilho, Sousa, Gomes and Percio.

Club: Rodger; Hill, S. H. Stranger; Skinner, Hynes, Duncan; Fowler, Dominy, Howe, E. Strange and Bickford.

Goals By Leonard Defeat Navy.

SAINTS SECURE FURTHER POINTS

The Saints advanced a step nearer in their bid for premier league honours yesterday when they defeated the Navy at Caroline Hill by two goals to nil.

Smart passing between Ward and Gosano on the right led up to the Saints first goal, when Ward finished a fine run by crossing the ball to LEONARD, who had little difficulty in converting. The Navy almost equalised in the next minute, for Langmead was in possession a few yards from goal, but Tong dashed forward and was pulled up for off-side.

The interval arrived with the Saints leading by a goal to nil, and from the resumption the Navy swept down the field in great style, only for Marques to make a fine save from Langmead—the best Naval effort of the match.

Shortly after LEONARD obtained possession at the half-way line, and, passing to Rocha, darted forward to accept the return pass, which he converted in such a manner that Woodman had no earthly chance of saving. Just before the end of the game Rocha netted, but the point was disallowed for off-side. Leonard sustained an injury to his ankle during the last minute and was assisted from the field.

St. Joseph's: R. Marques; Souza, A. V. Gosano; V. Marques, Beltrao, Elms; B. Gosano, Ward, Leonard, Rocha and Costa.

Navy: Woodman; James, West; Parkins, Thomas, Kefford; Fairless, Morgan, Langmead, Tong and Skinner.

SENIOR SHIELD.

Goal By Brooks Sends Police Into 2nd Round.

EXTRA TIME PROVIDES THRILLS.

A goal scored in the first few minutes of the extra time gave the Police entry into the Second Round of the Senior Shield when they defeated the Artillery at the Valley yesterday.

The Police showed much vigour at the commencement of the extra time and gave Combey an anxious time. Moss ran through; passed across to the right wing; Brooks took the pass and sent in a shot which Combey just failed to save; he checked it with his knees but the ball fell to his feet, bounced twice on the uneven ground and rolled into the net. The Police continued attacking and Combey gave a good exhibition of goal-keeping, stopping a hot shot from Stephens at two yards range. After these five minutes of energetic football, the game petered out into a very tame finish, the Police winning by the only goal.

The Police left wing, T. Pile and Brooks played very hard and should have scored more than once. McHardy, the Police custodian, played well.

Police: McHardy; Pile, Blackburn; Gough, Brittain; Sheppard; Pile, T. Brooks, Stephens, Green and Moss.

Artillery: Combey; Greenshields; Wroe; Rogers, Worthington, Harris; Snooks, Knight, Birmingham, Woods and Seale.

SECOND DIVISION.

Both Teams In Free Fight.

At Caroline Hill yesterday the league encounter between South China and the Young Indians developed into a free fight, and after repeated efforts to keep the game under control, referee Slaughter abandoned the game eight minutes from time when South China were leading by a goal to nil.

The first half of the game was fought at a fast pace, with the Chinese slightly superior in attack, but O. M. and A. M. Omar effectively with all their attacks. Just before the interval O. M. Omar was injured and had to leave the field.

Commencing the second period with the score sheet blank, South China were soon attacking, and following a prolonged attack on the Young Indians' goal, Yeung Kok Wa netted through a crowd of players, Ahmed being unslighted. Feeling then crept into the game, and Haroon was given marching orders for a foul on Yeung. The referee had occasion to caution several players, but rough play still continued, and Hussain and Yeung Poon Hong were sent off the field. When they reached the touch line they came to blows, and the remaining members of the teams then started fighting. After calling the teams together and cautioning all the players, the referee allowed the game to continue. Feeling, however, failed to be curbed, fouls becoming too frequent, and eight minutes from time the referee abandoned the game, with South China leading by a goal to nil.

South China: Wong Wa-kai; Chin Sui-hong, Yee Hing-yan; Yeung Kok-wa, Ho Chee-wing, Yan Wah-hing; Ng Po-ka, Lai Shi-wing, Kai Sek-wai, Ng Choon-lam and Yeung Poon-hong.

Young Indians: Ahmed; A. M. Omar, O. M. Omar; Razack, Hussain, Marker; Yusuf, Hamet, Azim, Haroon and Aurelli.

Two Goals For Morris Against Kowloon.

The game at Kowloon between the Borderers and Kowloon produced some very poor football, the soldiers winning by the odd goal in three.

After 30 minutes of poor play the Borderers opened the scoring through Morris who finished off a fine movement.

After the interval Kowloon improved and from a nice pass, G. Winch levelled the scores. Five minutes later John raced away and centred for Underwood to pass to Morris who headed his second goal. In the last few minutes Grant struck the crossbar from a free kick.

Borderers: Williams; Jenkins, Herbert; Whelan, Court, Williams; John, Pallister, Underwood, Morris and Seale.

Kowloon: Boyce; Everett, Docherty; Bayland, Grant, Tilley; V. Winch, Carter, V. White, G. Winch and G. White.

Duncan's Late Goal Gives Club Point.

A poor game between the Club and Navy at the Valley yesterday in a draw, both teams scoring once.

From the kick-off the Club rushed through, Bell having had luck when he took a pass from Baldwin only to kick wide of the post. Play then went to the Club end, Handley forcing Farrow to punch over the bar.

The Club were again unfortunate, when Fisher, after making a solo efforts on the wing, shot over the bar. A free kick was awarded against Grant for handling just outside the area, but Farrow managed to get to the ball and cleared. The home team rallied and took the game into Navy quarters. Mann rushed out of his goal to tackle Duncan who kicked ahead for Bell to clear the bar with first-time shot in front of an empty goal.

After the interval the Navy gave Farrow a few anxious moments. The first goal came from McNeill, the Navy centre-forward. He took a pass from the wing, headed the ball past Raiton and followed up to score a beautiful goal that gave Farrow no chance. Play from this stage slackened, both teams trying hard, but both sets of forwards lacking sting in their shots. The Club equalised five minutes from time. Fisher dribbled past the Navy defence and sent in a fine pass which Duncan headed past Mann.

Navy: Mann; Grant, Guy; Burdon; Dovey, Cansell; Barated, Chappelle; McNeill, Potts and Handley.

Club: Farrow; Raiton, Boyd; McKeller, Lowe, Gamble, Fisher, Deacon, Duncan, Bell and Baldwin.

Lincolns Run Riot Against Athletic.

The Athletic proved no match for the Lincolns second string yesterday, and were heavily defeated by 9 goals to 2 on the Chatham Road ground.

Within two minutes of the start the Lincolns were awarded a penalty for "hands," and Robson made no mistake from the spot. The Lincolns then indulged in shooting practice, further goals being added by Robson, McGuiness, Clayton, Maughan and Toynne, while Chan Sui-man headed through his own goal. In the second-half the Athletic managed to score twice, through Koo Hong-Cheong (one from a penalty).

Lincolns: Wardle; Steans, Colclough; Chapman, Worrall, Robson; Toynne, McGuiness, Evans, Maughan and Clayton.

Athletic: Lui Kam-ming; Chan Sui-chuen, Ng Tak-wing; Chau Sui-man, Cheung Yip-pui, Lo Chun-tsoi; Ip Yun-por, Pang Kam-hung, Koo Hong-cheong, Chan Cheung-yin and Kok Ying-wing.

THIRD DIVISION.

FOUR MORE FOR CLARKE

The Lincolns continued in winning vein at Chatham Road, easily beating the University by five clear goals.

In the first half Clarke scored twice and Parker once, and after the interval Clarke scored two further goals.

POWELL GIVES R.A.S.C. WIN

At King's Park the Royal Army Service Corps defeated the Recreio by two clear goals, Powell scoring once in each half.

SOUTH CHINA WIN

A thrilling game between the Borderers and South China at the Valley yesterday ended in a win for the Chinese by 2 goals to 1. Mok Wing-sang and Tong Man-ling scored for the Chinese, and Nelson scored from a penalty for the Borderers.

A MISUNDERSTANDING

Owing to some misunderstanding regarding the time of the kick-off, the game scheduled to take place yesterday at the Valley between the Radio and the R.A.F. was not played. The Radio turned up at 2.30, but the R.A.F. did not make an appearance until 3.30.

GAME POSTPONED

The premier league game between the Police and the Athletic, scheduled for to-day, has been postponed.

MR. A. EDEN'S NEW APPOINTMENT

Lord Privy Seal.

WILL NOT INTERFERE WITH FOREIGN OFFICE WORK.

London, Yesterday. Speaking at Warwick last night Mr. Anthony Eden, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, referring to his new appointment as Lord Privy Seal, said he was glad that it would not materially affect the work he had been engaged in for the last two years.

His connection with the Foreign Office would not be severed and he would continue to work under his present chief, Sir John Simon.

Touching briefly on the Disarmament question, he emphasised the beneficial effect on trade, owing to increased international confidence, that would result from a successful outcome of the Disarmament Conference.

He said that a downward instead of an upward tendency in expenditure upon world armaments would be taken as evidence of growing goodwill. In this way, more effectively than by any other means, could we assist to dispel the clouds of international suspicion which still lie heavy upon the horizon.

The Disarmament Conference meant so much more to-day than its own name signified in its limited technical sense. It had become the barometer of world goodwill, the gauge by which world public opinion might measure the capacity of nations to agree.—British Wireless Service.

PARIS NOW PEACEFUL

TWO VOTES OF CONFIDENCE IN GOVERNMENT

PERSONAL VICTORY FOR PREMIER.

"FRAUD STRICTLY JUDICIAL, NOT POLITICAL"

Paris, Yesterday.

A vote of confidence was passed in the French Government by the Chamber of Deputies, last night, by 360 votes to 229. The vote followed the fateful debate on the Bayonne bond fraud.

The Chamber later adopted by 376 votes to 205, a motion by M. Herriot expressing confidence in the Government.

The Socialists supported the Government.

The speech made by the Premier, M. Chautemps, defended his Press Label Bill which the Right Wing Party attacked as contrary to the freedom of the press.

M. Chautemps opposed the Right proposal for a Committee of Enquiry on the ground that the Stavisky affair was strictly judicial and not political.

The motion for the appointment of the Committee was defeated by 360 votes to 229.—Reuter.

Paris, Later.

The result of the Chamber debate is seen as a great personal victory for M. Camille Chautemps, and adds to the laurels he won on the unpopular Financial

NEW FLAGSHIP ON CHINA STATION.

Change-Over On Jan. 31.

London, Yesterday. The Admiralty announce that the flag of the Commander-in-Chief, China Station, will be transferred from H.M.S. Kent to H.M.S. Suffolk on January 31.—Reuter.

H.M.S. Kent, carrying H.E., the Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Sir Frederick Charles Dreyer, K.C.B., C.B.E., and accompanied by the Cruiser Suffolk, the Aircraft Carrier Eagle and the two Destroyer Tenders Veteran and Wren, left Hong Kong on Tuesday last for Singapore.

TREASURY'S BOND CONVERSION.

$105,000,000 Redemption.

London, Yesterday. The British Treasury has given notice of the redemption of $105,000,000 worth of four per cent. bonds, 1934-36, issued in 1930.

The Treasury will probably finance the operation by fresh borrowing at a lower rate.—Reuter.

Bill which was adopted shortly after he assumed the Premiership. The Bill had caused the defeat of the three previous Cabinets.

Thanks to the defeat of the Right motion for a Parliamentary Committee of Enquiry, Justice can now take its course in the Bayonne bond fraud unhindered by political interference.—Reuter.

Paris, Yesterday.

After the storm of Thursday night, Paris was peaceful yesterday evening.

Large crowds of youths were still standing in the rain, but the Police did not expect trouble.

The Police barred the Place de la Concorde, and only privileged traffic was allowed to pass.

Cafes and restaurants were open, but the shops on the Boulevard St. Germain were closed early.—Reuter.

THE TIGER OF TIBET

we had hidden in those low hills to this new hiding-place, as I intended to lead you here when we had escaped. We had not gone far, however, when I saw a Tibetan lama approaching from the opposite side. He was quite close to us when we first saw him in the moonlight. I did not know where he came from, but guessed that he might belong to the 'Tiger's' temple. We accordingly hid in a shadow, and as he passed I sprang upon him, covering his mouth with my hand before he had time to cry out.

"Jogaroo translated for me as I held him down with my knife at his throat. I threatened him with slow torture if he did not tell me all. He was very afraid and admitted that he came from the 'Tiger's' temple. I asked him what he knew of any prisoners, and he said that a white man had been taken in the disguise of a Hindu pilgrim. He also said that the padre-sahib and miss-sahib were still alive in the temple. He then told us that you had made a great fight that morning, killing many of his comrades and had escaped with the padre-sahib and miss-sahib, but that you had been recaptured again very soon and that you were to be tortured on the morrow.

"I saw that he knew, no more, and as he had served his purpose I slew him. Jogaroo and I carried the body—and it was very heavy, for the man was fat—past the temple and flung it out where it might be easily seen on the morrow as a warning to those devils.

"We fetched the baggage and were carrying it past the temple to the cleft when we heard a commotion on the steps and someone came hurrying out. We dropped down on the ground and waited, keeping as still as stones lest we should be seen.

"The man passed close to us, and we saw he was another lama. He was going away from the cleft, but we followed him at a distance. When we were out of earshot from the temple I hastened after him. He heard us coming and turned, asking us what we wanted. Jogaroo called out that we had a message from the 'Tiger'. He waited until we came up when I sprang upon him, choking him as I had done the first one.

"I stuck my knife into him to make him speak, but not too hard. Like the other he was very afraid and spoke freely. He said that without doubt you, sahib, were possessed with many devils, for you had managed to escape again after killing your jailer with your bare hands when you were chained up. My heart glowed with pride for my colonel-sahib's great bravery, and I stuck my knife into his ribs again to help him with his story. Alas! The end was not so good as the beginning, for he said that you had all three been captured again, and that the 'Tiger' himself was going to see you tortured. I asked him where you would be tortured, had he told me in the hall. I pricked him with the knife again so as to help him with the truth, and asked him what hall. He said it was the one with the great window in the roof. Then I knew that Allah was on our side, and I slew him.

"We carried the body—he was also very fat; they need more exercise, these lamas—near to the body of the first and left it there for the dogs and wolves.

"Then, sahib, we took the baggage to the cleft and I told Jogaroo to await me there while I climbed the mountain in order to reach the temple. Jogaroo wished to come with me, but I thought that one man ran a better chance of escaping detection, so I took all the arms and when alone. But I made a great mistake, the mistake of a fool I underestimated the difficulties of the road by night, and had not left enough time, for when dawn broke I was still a long way from the temple. My heart was heavy with me, sahib, for I thought that I had lost my opportunity through my foolishness. But our fight was just, and Allah ever helps the righteous. Even while I was wondering whether I should risk an approach by daylight I heard a great din arising from the steps of the temple. The lamas had discovered the two dead bodies of their friends and were bringing them back. They made a great noise about it, and then I saw a white man come out. He was the man whose servant had betrayed you. I knew he was the 'Tiger'. I watched him through my glasses as he talked to the lamas; then he went in for a minute and soon returned with a rifle, dressed as if for shikar (hunting). I saw that he was going out, and my heart was glad, for I knew that you would not be hurt until his return.

"He rode on a pony which was led from a stable under the very steps of the temple, and set off with a large body of men, almost all of them Tibetans. I guessed that he was going out at their request to search for the men who had killed the lamas, and so I returned to the cleft, where I found Jogaroo preparing some food. I was very hungry and tired, and after eating I slept, knowing that you would not be hurt until the 'Tiger's' return. Jogaroo climbed out and watched for his coming back so as to warn me in time.

"Suddenly I was awakened by approaching footsteps just outside the entrance to the cleft.

"I lay very still holding my pistol, but the footsteps passed by. I waited for a minute, and then stealthily crawled out to see who it was who had passed. I saw but a hundred yards from me a Tibetan travelling alone. I knew at once that he must be from the temple, and so I decided to risk all and follow him. On looking round I saw that there was no one else in sight, so I hurried after him and called out. We were alone, and what had I, a Pathan, to fear from one Tibetan devil?

As soon as he turned I recognised his face, for it had a great scar across both forehead and right cheek which made him even more ugly than he would have been. I knew him at once, for I had been particularly struck by his evil face when, sahib, we went to that meeting of the gang in the Tibetan's shop in the Chandi Chowk. He had then been close to the Tibetan who owned the shop. I at once took out the little gold-handled knife which I had taken from Kurram Ali on that same evening and held it up for him to see. He became very excited, and started asking questions in some heathen tongue which I did not understand. I said, 'Speak Urdu, fool.' He replied in Urdu immediately, very angry at being called a fool. I then knew that he could talk in a tongue which I could understand, so I seized him by the throat and forced him down to the ground. I had no desire to be seen talking to him, so I bound his hands with his own belt and, covering him with my pistol, made him come back with me to the cleft. "It was not until then, sahib, did I realise what a very good hiding-place it was. We had had difficulty in finding the entrance at night, but I guessed that was on account of the false shadows thrown by the moon. But by day it was even more hard to find, and I actually over-shot the entrance although I was with me, but I thought that one man ran a better chance of escaping detection,

Mechanical Horse Arrives

No Larger Than The Real Animal.

30 PER CENT CHEAPER
IN UPKEEP

A mechanical horse that never gets tired, does not require feeding and grooming on Sundays, and is as powerful as several cart-horses, was one of the fascinating exhibits at the Commercial Motor Transport show at Olympia.

No larger than the animal it replaces, it can be hitched on to any wagon, and will back it with unfailing accuracy, draw it at steady speed for a hundred miles or more at a time, and manoeuvre easily in the most confined spaces.

Users declare that a "mechanical horse" costs 30 per cent. less in use and upkeep than the real thing. It has one wheel in front and two, close together, behind. In market-place or narrow street it is even more handy than the noble beasts which it liberates for more pleasant tasks in the open country. Two such "horses" are the Karrier Cob and the Scammel "Mechanical Horse"—both wonders of modern automobile engineering.

"Having brought the man into the cleft, I began to ask him questions. At first he refused to answer, but after a very little persuasion he talked quite freely. I find that these Tibetans are very fond of torturing other people, but are very great cowards when it comes to their turn.

"Well, sahib, he began to talk so fast that I had to tell him to go more slowly. He said that the 'Tiger' had gone out with a body of lamas to search for the men who had murdered two of their brethren in the night. I gave him a poke with the knife when he said 'murdered', to teach him manners, and told him that it was I who had punished them as they so richly deserved. At that he grew more afraid than ever and whined for mercy, saying if I would give him his life he would make me rich. I asked how, and he told me that he was taking some rubies down to the Tibetan in Delhi to turn into money for payments. At that I laughed, and asked him when the 'Tiger' would return. He said he would be away all day, as he knew that he had taken plenty of food with him. I further asked when he, sahib, were to be tortured, and he said on the morrow in the morning, for he had heard the great Tibetan say so. The great Tibetan, he told me, was the one who took the place of the 'Tiger' when he was away. I asked him where you were to be tortured and he told me in the great hall with the big window in the roof, the same as the lama had said. It seemed that he had now served his useful purpose, so I slew him and searched his body for the rubies. I found them sewn up in a secret pocket in the hem of one of his robes. Then I climbed up to where Jogaroo was watching and told him the news. He came down back to the cleft, saying that the 'Tiger' had gone right away across the plain to the north-east, and was now out of sight. We accordingly had some more food, and then I thought it would be a jest to sling the carcass of the Tibetan out on the temple steps.

"We went outside to see if we could see anything, and in the distance noticed a cavalcade of mounted men. At first I thought they were the 'Tiger's' party, but soon saw that there were too many horses, so we went to investigate. We found they were a party of Purang in order to sell ponies.

"This was a great piece of luck, and I said I would buy six, Jogaroo explaining my words. At first they would not sell, but I explained that I was a servant of a great Hindu rajah who had come on a pilgrimage to Kailas, and who was particularly desirous of buying some ponies for riding at Mussoorie. They wished to know what payment they would receive, and I replied that my master was a very great rajah who always gave great gifts for anything he desired instead of money. I then showed them the very smallest of the rubies, and passed it round among themselves. I said my master would, I knew, give a bigger stone than that one for each pony, and as for the one they were looking at, why, they could keep it as a token of my master's, the rajah-sahib's, goodwill. I could see that they did not altogether believe my story, but the stone was real, and they knew that they would never do such a good deal again, so they let me take my pick, and I chose six stocky little ponies with good shoulders. I asked for saddles, but at first they refused, so I offered another ruby for six saddles, and they gave me good ones of their sort, but somewhat rough. Jogaroo and I then led the ponies back to the cleft.

CONTRACT BRIDGE NOTES

By "CLAY"

Bridge like war is an art, a combination of many factors is necessary to success and the spoils go to the combatant who consistently weighs up all the possibilities. Luck is a potent element but fortune favours the brave—so try to make your luck.

In a previous article I have commented on the need for careful summing up of the characteristics etc. of Partners and opponents. I propose in some ensuing ones to consider the other weapons at the disposal of the Bridge "Commander." These may be summarized as, Card Valuation, Sound Bidding, Deduction from Bids, and Play of the Hand. I will begin with Card Valuation. Bridge was introduced into the Whist Club of New York by Henry Berbey in 1893. Since then many first class players have expounded various theories and systems of ascertaining the worth of a hand. More recently there has been a regular spate of Bridge literature on this subject, so much so that no doubt, we shall shortly have concise systems of valuations printed on the backs of cigarette cards. I do not propose to swell the flood. I should like however to accentuate a few cardinal points which I feel are the basis of the proposition and which do not care for violent mental acrobatics. They are briefly these:

(1) Your hand has two separate values, one in attack, one in defence.

(2) If you get the contract the value of every high card in your hand and in your Dummy's is doubled for trick taking purposes, owing to their propensity for promoting small cards.

(3) Playing the two hands is probably worth an extra trick in the play. Motto—If at all possible and reasonable get the final contract.

(4) Your partner assumes, before you speak, (when making his bid) that you hold the equivalent of two playing tricks.

For example. On a holding of Spades A, Q, 10, x, x, and an outside your partner not vulnerable may call one spade.

In that suit his hand is worth five playing the tricks—three for his trump holding and two his outside ace. If at the end of the hand—assuming he was ever allowed to play at this contract—he was down 2 tricks, would you blame him? No! you would say.

Sorry partner. I was a broken reed. In other words your hand was abnormally worthless. It was trickless.

(5) As declarer you can only make the trumps in your own hand once. A short suit is therefore not additional strength, it is a liability in your first estimation of the value of your hand. On the contrary as partner of the declarer a short suit is a most powerful assistance, always provided that the necessary trump support is there, at no trumps it is a weakness in either hand. A blank suit in Dummy at a trump call is worth one ace i.e. 2 playing tricks, a singleton is the equivalent of a guarded king, i.e. one playing trick. An extra trump above normal is worth one playing trick one trump less than normal reduces value of hand by one trick when played in that suit.

(6) In defence your high cards are worth no more and no less than their face value i.e. The ace is good for one trick, a guarded king half a trick.

(7) Queens and Knaves except in combination with higher cards are better considered under the modern term of + values. Their trick taking capacities are too problematical for accurate forecast. Regard them as local reserves which may just turn the tide. Here are two hands which may serve to illustrate the points enumerated.

'ASPRO' as a GARGLE for SORE THROATS

THERE are few people throughout the world who are not acquainted with the virtues of 'ASPRO' in relieving pain—stopping Colds—Flu and Rheumatic attacks at inception. Many, however, do not know how to use 'ASPRO' as a gargle for Sore Throats. Two 'ASPRO' Tablets in four tablespoonfuls of water make a very effective gargle, acting as a powerful antiseptic for Sore Throats because of its natural germicidal qualities. The reason why 'ASPRO' has such quick action in banishing so many varied complaints, is because, after ingestion in the system, it is a powerful germicide and solvent of uric acid, is an anti-Pyretic or fever destroyer and is antiseptic—anti-periodic and anti-fermentative.

5 MINUTES

FOR RELIEF WITH 'ASPRO'

There is nothing indefinite about 'ASPRO'. Its service is QUICK—safe, effective and definite. It gives you relief in 5 to 10 minutes and then goes on to dispel or dissolve the cause of the pain, allowing Nature to effect its own cure. Furthermore, you get no harmful after-effects from 'ASPRO', as it is speedily eliminated from the system a few hours after being taken. It neither dopes, deadens or drugs.

'ASPRO' BRINGS SWEET SLEEP TO THE SLEEPLESS

There are many thousands of people who now have sweet peaceful sleep, who hitherto hardly knew the meaning of a period of restfulness. 'ASPRO' has brought about the transformation by its sweet soothing influence on the nerves, and breaking up of local feverish conditions. Two tablets before retiring is the usual dose.

HOW TO GIVE 'ASPRO' TO CHILDREN

Two simple methods of giving 'ASPRO' to the kiddies are: (a) with a little milk or (b) break the tablet up and administer in a teaspoonful of juice. The dosage is: Children 3 to 6 years, ½ tablet; 6 to 14 years, 1 tablet; 14 to 16 years 1½ tablets. 'ASPRO' like any other medicine should not be given to babies under 3 years of age without medical advice.

THE HYGIENIC SANITAPE PACKING METHOD EXPLAINED.

THE 'SANITAPE' METHOD EXPLAINED

The plant consists of the most up-to-date and efficient mechanical apparatus, including a number of 'SANITAPE' machines, which seal the tablets hygienically in specially prepared wax paper compartments.

This system is known as the modern HYGIENIC 'SANITAPE' method of packing, and because of its thorough protective properties, ensures that 'ASPRO' retains its original high standard of purity. This should serve to commend 'ASPRO' to all who appreciate the absolute necessity of purity in medicine.

The wonderful human-like 'SANITAPE' machines are one of the most ingenious and highly developed engineering triumphs of modern times. The machines wrap the tablet with unerring regularity in waxed paper, divide the paper into separate compartments, crimp each compartment so that no air can find access to the tablet, fold the tapes, and finally pass them through sprays of paraffin wax, effectively sealing the 'SANITAPE' and rendering the tablets proof against damp, moisture and any form of contamination.

ELIMINATION OF HANDLING

The 'SANITAPE' method of packing has a distinct advantage over the crude and obsolete system of hand packing. At no time during the process of manufacturing, compressing and packing, do 'ASPRO' Tablets come in contact with the human hand, therefore, contamination from this source is entirely prevented, the tablets reaching the consumer in the same perfect hygienic state as when they left the tableting machines.

What 'ASPRO' Does:

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1 It Stops Violent Head aches in 5 to 10 minutes | 9 A hot lemon drink with 2 or 3 'ASPRO' Tablets will smash up a Cold or 'Flu' attack in one night. |
| 2 It Brings Sweet Sleep to the Sleepless. | 10 It Reduces Temperature in 5 minutes. |
| 3 It Relieves Rheumatism in one night. | 11 It can be taken at any time, in Train, at Home, at Business—anywhere—anywhere. |
| 4 It Relieves Children's Growing Pains. | 12 It gives the greatest relief ever known to women at their times of periodical depression. |
| 5 It Saves many a Sound Tooth by Removing Toothache. | 13 It Stops the Ill After-Effects of Alcohol. |
| 6 It Brings Relief without causing sickness, indigestion or a craving. | 14 It relieves Dengue and Malaria by reducing the fever. |
| 7 It Stops Pain without harming the Heart. | 15 At a Gargle, 'ASPRO' is wonderful for Sore Throats, Tonsillitis, etc. |
| 8 It soothes away Irritability | |

London, Yesterday.

the Home Fleet, which went aground at the entrance to Portland Harbour, yesterday, ed into lighters, while a dredger started work beneath her bows with a view to facilitating the re-floating when the tide rose.

The "Nelson," grounded on Shingle Bank, when leaving Portsmouth to join the other vessels of the Home Fleet for Spring Cruise in the morning, and was re-floated at six o'- clock in the evening about two hours before high tide.

VAN DER LUBBE'S BODY

Burial In Holland Not Permitted.

RELATIVES SURPRISED

Amsterdam, Yesterday.
Contrary to the intimation of January 10 to the Dutch Consul at Leipzig, Germany has decided not to allow the body of Van der Lubbe the young Dutch Communist who was guillotined on Wednesday following his conviction on charges of setting fire to the Reichstag, to be buried in Holland.

The Public Prosecutor in Berlin has notified the funeral undertaker at Leyden that the body may not be removed to Holland, but that it will be available until noon to-morrow for a simple burial at Leipzig, without ceremony.

The decision has surprised both the relatives of Van der Lubbe and Dutch official circles.

The Dutch Government has instructed its Minister at Berlin to take immediate steps in view of the latest decision.—Reuter.

MRS. H. CHRISTIE'S DEATH.

in a street in the French Concession, on the morning of January 6.

At the time of the discovery, it appeared that she had either jumped or fallen from the third storey of an apartment house.
During the previous evening she had been involved in a brawl with another woman.—Reuter's Pacific
